NOTE FROM 'INNER' NAZI

American Artillery Terrorizes Germans

WITH AN AMERICAN INFANTRY OUTFIT IN GERMANY, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The deep and almost unreasoning terror the Germans have for American artillery, which is by far the most awesome weapon on the western front, was illustrated today in a diary taken from a captured Nazi medical aid man.

Here is what he said:

"The first light shows in the east. The hour is approaching. We expect the 'Ami' (Jerry slang for Americans) to attack at 7:30 a. m. Then our fate will be decided. It is Sunday; my God today is Sunday. The edge of our forest gets a barrage. The earth trembles, concussion takes away my breath. To our left machineguns begin and here come the Ami.

"Now Ami artillery ceases and Ami tank guns are firing like mad. But Ami infantry takes cover, the attack slows down. It is stopped. Unbelievable. Now we move forward to counterattack. Can't go far, though. Our people are dropping like tired flies. Slowly Ami artillery begins. It is going again. Drumming, drumming, drumming without letup.

"Our people are overtired. When the Ami really attacks again then he has got to break through. I can't believe that this land can be held any longer. Some of our boys have run away, but we are going to fight.

"Now Ami artillery is worse than ever. Suddenly the tanks and hordes of Amis are breaking out of the forest. Terrible fire meets him, but he does not even take cover any more. We shoot until the barrels sizzle. We think the worst is over when suddenly he breaks through on our left. We cannot hold him any longer. There are only a few of us left here. Now there are only five.

"We have got to go back. Already we can see the Brown figures through the trees. As they get to within 70 paces I turn around and walk away, very calmly with my hands in my pockets.

"They are not even shooting at me, perhaps because of the Red Cross on my back.

"Maybe I will get out of this alive. But if I stay in these torn-up woods then perhaps some comrade will find this book and send it to my wife."

10,000-Ton USS Atlanta Officially Joins Navy

By LEE FUHRMAN
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The USS Atlanta has been placed in commission. With these words and a smart salute from Cmdr. K. J. Biederman, executive officer, to Capt. B. H. Colyear, skipper, the mighty new cruiser Atlanta, 10,000 tons of rugged fighting strength, officially joined the Navy today.

CLOTHING CHAMP

Telfair Girl 4-H Club Prize Winner

By LORRAINE NELSON
Constitution Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 3.—Georgia stepped quickly into the spotlight focused around rural America as the 22nd National 4-H Club Contest got under way here today.

Eighteen-year-old Marion Cook, of Lumber City, was named one of 12 national winners in the clothing achievement contest, and in addition to the all-expenses-paid trip to this contest, she will receive a $200 education scholarship.

With the 11 other prize-winning 4-Hers from home states rafting from Utah to New Hampshire, Marion will be a special guest at a dinner Tuesday night to be given by the Spool Cotton Company.

Results of the clothing competition were the first to be announced in the opening hours of the national meet.

OTHER CONTESTS

Winners in 15 other contests, eight of which have Georgia entrants, will be announced during the remaining three days of the contest. Some 1,000 4-Hers from 45 states have assembled here to vie for the national titles.

An impressive record of seven years in 4-H Clubs in Telfair county has preceded the Georgia girl's recognition. She has made 160 garments and remodeled 35 in her 4-H Club project alone.

Sixty-seven of the total new garments were made during the past year, some of which she made for neighboring families and for which she received appreciation.

Tokyo Plane Plant Hit Death Blow As B-29 Raid Pinpoints Targets

DESTINATION TOKYO—Off for Tokyo and another stiff punch at Nippon's war industry is this American Superfortress in the raid launched from Saipan on November 23, first occasion when the B-29s rocked the enemy capital. Yesterday's fourth raid on Tokyo by the giant bombers aimed to finish off an airplane engine plant; the raid cost one bomber, smashed 12 Japanese planes. One squadron laid 75 per cent of its bombs squarely on the target. Buying of war bonds will continue this destruction against our enemies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—American Superfortresses went back to Tokyo today to finish their job on one of the principal units of the enemy's aircraft industry and obtained "good" results with precision bombing.

The target was the Musashino plant of the Nakajima Aircraft Company which was hit by the Saipan-based B-29 bombers in the first attack on Tokyo Nov. 24. This was the fourth time the Superfortresses had attacked targets in the enemy capital.

A 20th Air Force communique said that one squadron reported 75 per cent of its bombs fell within the plant area.

One B-29 was lost over the target after attack by enemy fighters.

3d Crosses Saar To Hit Siegfried

SHAFF, PARIS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The U. S. Third Army smashed organized resistance in most of the factory city of Saarlautern and broke across the Saar river into the Siegfried line today as the First Army seized four towns in triple assaults west of Cologne that rolled back the Roer defenses a mile or more.

"The tempo of the Allied winter offensive rose furiously. The British Second Army sprang to the attack in eastern Holland with a dawn assault that swept up to 800 yards into the stout Maas river defenses at Venlo, last German bastion on that front short of the Reich.

Hundreds of American and British fighter bombers swarmed in support of the new drives in the north, and the German air force met the challenge with the biggest show of strength in weeks, sending at least 75 jet-propelled planes against the British. The

KILLERS DOOMED

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that all five defendants in the Masdenek concentration camp atrocity trial at Lublin, Poland, had been sentenced to hang. Their execution will be public.

The radio said a sixth defendant had hanged himself in his cell during the trial.

In the trial, which began Nov. 27, representatives of the Soviet-Polish commission which investigated the German camp testified that 1,500,000 bodies had been exhumed from mass graves there.

The new crossing, made by the Fifth Infantry Division, whose commander was disclosed to be Maj. Gen. Stafford L. Erwin, penetrated a mile into Germany, 11 miles southwest of the Saar's main city of Saarbrücken, repulsing a tank-supported counterblow.

Farther south, the 80th Division entered Cite Ste. Barbe, nine miles southwest of Saarbrücken and less than a mile from the Saar border, after a one-mile advance.

SPURN NAZI COMMAND
Inden, Lucherberg, Luchem and Brandenburg fell to the First Army, which made an assault crossing of the Inde river. It was pushing toward the Roer at three points along a 12-mile front.

Lucherberg, a mile southeast of the Inde crossing, two and a half miles from the Roer, and five miles northwest of the stronghold of Duren, was seized by American infantry cut off in the town.

Refusing a German demand to surrender, the Americans radioed supporting artillery to shell the town—even if they were in it—

Mary Needs $25 a Month To Keep Baby

By PAUL WARWICK
All of war's tragic casualties are not suffered on the field of battle or on the high seas. War's shocking results are all around us, even if we, in our own security, do not see or recognize them.

And that's why The Constitution's Opportunity Fund has a bigger job than ever to do this year—not a less arduous task, because of high wages and increased employment.

Take the case of John and Mary, for instance, Mary in particular.

John and Mary were young—John in the armed forces and Mary at work in a war production plant here in Atlanta. So far, all is fine and patriotic. Both were strangers to the city and found, perhaps, a strengthening bond in that mutual strangeness.

They fell in love—a trite and hackneyed phrase, but it still tells the story, as it has done down through the ages.

When John's seagoing orders came along, the last barriers of none-too-strong youthful restraint came tumbling down.

Now, that last week of unbridled happiness may—without friendly help—result in a lifetime of regret.

Alone and desperate, Mary faced the temptation of preventing the birth of the child. She told a worker of the Family Welfare Society how she fought down that temptation.

"I'd even started out to a place I

Riots Sweeping Athens; 15 Killed

By STEPHEN BARBER
ATHENS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Greek police fired on a crowd of leftwing EAM demonstrators in this capital today—killing 15 and wounding 148 persons by EAM account—and a pitched battle broke out in an Athens suburb between Royalists and EAM (National Liberation Front) Army members.

(Prime Minister George Papandreu in a broadcast to the Greek nation, heard in London by the Associated Press, charged "leaders of the extreme left are preparing the way to civil war.")

The crowd of EAM sympathizers, turned back by police guns this morning in Constitution square, included women and children.

A crowd was demonstrating against Papandreu's orders that all guerrillas be disbanded and disbanded.

OPEN BATTLE

In a suburb in the shadow of the Acropolis, Royalists and men of the EAM's Army—battled openly, and the conflict had lasted five hours by tonight.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Left Wing Commonwealth National Committee, meeting in London today, issued a statement condemning British policy in Europe as reactionary.

"In Belgium," the statement said, "an unpopular government has been maintained by British bayonets, and in Italy and Greece British influence and British armed forces are used on the side of reaction."

"Those who fought against the Nazis are disarmed, and those who collaborated with the Nazis are often protected."

This battle was a new flareup of long-drawn-out hostilities, and the reason for the latest EAM attack may be found in the fact (several words censored) who British responsible for turning over British sten guns to the Athens civil police who opened fire on the demonstrators this morning.

"Today our conscience is clear," Papandreu said, declaring his government had tried to meet or compromise with the demands of the Leftists.

"All responsibility, before history and before the nation, is upon the leaders of the extreme left. In the name of the people and the nation, we denounce the lead.

Hero, Saluted By Generals, Values Bonds

By CAROLYN CARTER.

S. Sgt. Paul B. Huff, a wearer of the Congressional Medal of Honor, looked at the Sixth War Loan situation at home through eyes of a fighting man who has waited for bond-financed equipment to save his life. He reversed the perspective and asked one question:

"Did you ever think how the bond drive would go if the fighting front was buying bonds for the home front?"

The modest Tennessee mountaineer who fired a switch engine before he learned to be an expert airborne infantryman, waited for his listeners to think:

"I'll tell you how it would be. Subscriptions would pile up. Men who're ready to die for their country wouldn't have to be entered to buy bonds. In fact, I've seen hundreds of them take their money just before they went in combat and put it all in war bonds. They don't know if they'll live through the fight, but they have supreme confidence in the value of war bonds. Their families will have a safe investment if they die."

Sgt. Huff wagers any bond buyer that if men on the battle front thought men at home needed something they had, it would be shipped by the fastest express.

And men on the fighting front need plenty, he testified. He fought the Germans around Anzio when ammunition was rationed.

"Possibly most bond buyers at home don't know ammunition ever was allotted. But shells for the

MEANS "ENGINES"
The Japanese name "Musashino" means aircraft engines. The 20th Air Force is devoting full attention in its strategic bombing of the enemy home islands to cutting down Japanese fighter plane production.

A dispatch from the 21st Bomber base in Saipan said the mission was flown by a "substantial task force." Initial reports described this as the most successful of the four raids on Tokyo. The first bomb was away at 2:15 p. m., Tokyo time, and the attack continued more than an hour and a half.

The additional details were reported in an afternoon communique following up the announcement early this morning that the B-29s had gone back to work over a target hit before.

JAPS CLAIM 15 DOWNED
Japanese imperial headquarters in a communique claimed that 15 of "some 70" B-29s which raided the city for an hour and a half were shot down. Tokyo said "damage to our side was very slight."

Americans Smash 5 Jap Vessels, 12 Planes Off Philippines, Borneo

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Leyte, Philippines, Monday, Dec. 4.—(UP)—U. S. planes and light naval craft sunk or damaged five Japanese merchant vessels totaling 10,000 tons and destroyed or damaged 12 enemy planes in a series of attacks against the Philippines and the island of Borneo, it was announced today.

The heaviest toll in enemy shipping was taken off Borneo by heavy bombers which sank a 3,000-ton merchant vessel and two 1,000-ton freighters and probably sank another 1,000-ton freighter.

Those attacks were made Wednesday and Saturday.

Light naval units patrolling the Samar sea north of Leyte damaged a 4,000-ton vessel off the island of Masbate and shot down one Japanese plane and damaged another.

The bulletin reported heavy tropical rains were continuing to reduce fighting on the Leyte ground fronts to local attacks and patrol actions. American fighters, however, hammered Japanese supplies and communications around the air base of Valencia, nine miles north of Ormoc.

The heaviest of the air assaults was made Wednesday against Puerto Princesa, on the east coast of the Philippines island of Palawan. Heavy bombers dropped 135 tons of bombs which damaged runways and buildings and destroyed four parked planes.

Attack bombers and fighters struck installations at Dansalan in the northwestern corner of Mindanao and pursuit planes over Mindanao caught 10 Japanese fighters taking off from Sassa airbase, shooting down four of them and probably destroying a fifth.

Medium bombers and attack planes hitting the island of Halmahera battered airplane runways, destroying a grounded plane. Four Japanese planes struck the American-held island of Morotai and caused some damage.

Patrol planes attacking Ambon harbor on the island of Amboina damaged nine schooners.

Heavy, medium and light bombers dropped 97 tons of bombs on the Japanese base of Rabaul, on New Britain island and Kavieng, New Ireland.

SUCCESSOR TO "MIGHTY A" ACCEPTED—Capt. Bayard H. Colyear, third from left, accepts the new 10,000-ton cruiser Atlanta, fourth of its name, as it is commissioned at Philadelphia for active duty in the Navy. Watching him are Rear Adm. Milo F. Draemel, commandant of the Fourth Naval District, and Lt. W. J. Trower, center, Navy chaplain, who delivered the invocation. The crew includes seven survivors of the third Atlanta, the "Mighty A," lost in the Battle of Guadalcanal in 1942.

Tech-Georgia Ball Sold For $4,000,000 in Bonds

A $16 football bearing the autographs of Georgia's top-flight grid players was sold for $4,000,000 in war bonds yesterday to R. E. Gormley, vice president, Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company.

Other athletic souvenirs had mounted into high figures when Jackson Dick bought $1,000,000 in bonds and got the Tech-Notre Dame pigskin, and bidders bought big bonds for the Bob Hope and Bobby Jones golf balls. None reached yesterday's high.

Show To Boost Bond Sales Tours North Georgia

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—Approximately 55 soldiers and WACs from Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., arrived here this morning to present a series of war bond shows this week in Gainesville and eight other towns in this area.

Headquarters of the troop will be at the Dixie-Hunt hotel, Gainesville.

Arranged through the co-operation of Frank Gabrels, of Clarksville, who is seventh district war finance chairman, the shows will feature a modern version of a minstrel. A highlight of the shows will be talks by Col. Howard Clark 2d, post commander at Fort Oglethorpe, and S. Sgt. Paul Huff, of Cleveland, Tenn., who is the first paratrooper in history to win the nation's highest military honor—the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The first performance of the show in this area is scheduled for Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Cleveland, Ga., High school. At 7:30 p. m. the show will be given at Dahlonega, Ga.

The schedule for the rest of the week follows:

Clarksville, Tuesday, 7 p. m.; Gainesville, Wednesday, 7:30 p. m.; Cornelia, Thursday, 2 p. m.; Toccoa, Thursday, 8 p. m.; Cumming, Friday, 3 p. m.; Buford, Friday, 7:30 p. m.; Norcross, Saturday, 2:30 p. m.

Appearing with the show in each town will be the 402d Army Service Forces Band, the WAC band stationed at Fort Oglethorpe. Directed by Warrant Officer Marjorie Pickett, the entire band will give a short concert before each program, and during the show a swing band composed of WACs will play.

Also with the show is the Fort Oglethorpe hillbilly band, composed of men in the station complement at the post. Master of ceremonies for the hillbilly band is Cpl. Robert A. ("Fats") Everett, 365-post soldier.

T-4 Dorothy Zanelli will act as interlocutor for the minstrel. T-4 Zanelli appeared as an entertainer in night clubs and theaters throughout the country before joining the WAC.

A number of other soldiers and WACs who were professional musicians in civilian life are also featured on the hour-and-a-half program.

The show was presented first in the present tour Friday night at Canton, Ga. It also appeared Saturday afternoon at Ellijay, and Saturday night at Blue Ridge.

The Georgia-Georgia Tech ball, bearing signatures of all players in the classic game, was auctioned by Movie Star Janet Blair, blond Hollywood beauty "without glamor," who completed her Georgia swing with the sale at a bond rally at the municipal auditorium.

Homer Thompson, master of ceremonies at the afternoon session, helped Janet catch bids until the figures mounted so high he peeled off his coat and propped against the microphone.

Lt. Col. Parks Hunt, Atlanta officer, who stormed the French coast in the invasion of Nazi Europe, boosted bond sales by his eyewitness account of preparations for the "gigantic operation."

Col. Hunt reminded his audience that Americans, with the determination his men had when they attacked the Germans, still remember their families and friends at home. "You are foremost in their minds," he said, as he reminded his audience to keep the men first in their thoughts by buying war bonds.

Following his talk, invasion combat movies, filmed in the same locale where Hunt fought, were shown by W. W. Alexander, state chairman of the 16-millimeter films for the Sixth War Loan drive. Alexander and his staff show these movies upon request from any club or organization. Their film library includes some of the most documentary movies of this war.

Miss Bettie Hall, 18-year-old Decatur college girl, who introduced President Roosevelt over a nationwide hookup on election eve, punched for "E" bonds and begged potential bond buyers to consider "E" bonds as to small to amount to anything. She told of the other seemingly minor things which have made this war a success.

A. J. Garing, Georgia Tech band leader, conducted a concert by the combined Army and Navy band from Georgia Tech and the Yaarab Shrine Temple.

Also with the show is the Fort Oglethorpe hillbilly band, composed of men in the station complement at the post. Master of ceremonies for the hillbilly band is Cpl. Robert A. ("Fats") Everett, 365-post soldier.

T-4 Dorothy Zanelli will act as interlocutor for the minstrel. T-4 Zanelli appeared as an entertainer in night clubs and theaters throughout the country before joining the WAC.

A number of other soldiers and WACs who were professional musicians in civilian life are also featured on the hour-and-a-half program.

THE $4,000,000 BALL—Janet Blair, Columbia's titleholder in "My Sister Eileen," is shown as she auctioned the Tech-Georgia pigskin to R. E. Gormley for $4,000,000. The ball was sold to the high bond bidder at a rally at the Municipal auditorium.

Pace Heads Committee To Study Cotton's Ills

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The plight of Dixie's King Cotton may lead to a reworking of the agricultural map of the United States.

Cotton is in trouble, trouble so deep that a congressional group tomorrow is beginning a series of meetings to see if some solution can be found.

Some thoughtful agriculture leaders believe cotton has no future—at least no future that can compare with its past when it literally ruled the fiber world.

Competition from foreign cotton and from synthetic fibers produced at home is threatening to shove the king from his throne.

That prospect prompted a special House Agriculture Subcommittee, headed by Rep. Pace, Democrat, Georgia, and backed by cottonstate legislators in both the house and senate, to organize the fact-finding session beginning tomorrow.

Cotton farmers, ginners, warehousemen, crushers, merchants, bankers, railroad men and representatives of state and federal agencies are due to attend. Several foreign nations also have received State Department approval to send representatives to the sessions which may last a week.

ALL COTTON INTERESTS

"In other words," Pace said, "we intend to assemble in one meeting every interest and every group which handles cotton or depends upon cotton for a livelihood, in the hope that as the result of such a meeting we can, through our united efforts, find a sound and sensible program for the future of cotton."

In addition to the postwar surplus of at least 12,000,000 bales which the United States is expected to have, the price factor is complicating the situation.

Basically, American cotton is priced too high to compete effectively with many of the domestic synthetics for the home market and with Brazilian and other foreign cotton in markets of the world.

Cotton prices are being held at such levels by government price policies designed to protect cotton growers' income. These policies have been established at the insistence of a large segment of the cotton industry, particularly the growers.

Here are some questions which friends of cotton and the government must answer:

Should cotton give up the struggle, or should it keep battling? Should the government withhold its price supports and allow cotton to drop to levels where it could compete with synthetics at home and foreign cotton abroad? Or should the government spend several hundred million dollars annually in grower subsidies and export bounties to help cotton compete?

There is a strong segment in the cotton industry that believes the government should get out of the farming business. There are other segments that believe the government should expand its operations to assure cotton a full market at home with good prices for growers, and dump excess production abroad.

Some leaders believe it is possible to solve the matter of foreign competition by means of an international agreement under which producing nations would agree to share the world market at prices not far out of line with those now prevailing in this country. Efforts in the past to get such an agreement have failed, however.

EFFICIENT METHODS?

Others believe cotton's salvation rests with lower prices from more efficient production—that is, the introduction of large-scale mechanization and the elimination of the one-mule farm.

Mechanization would tend to shift the crop from the southeastern states and concentrate it in the Mississippi delta and in Texas and Oklahoma.

Hence, farmers in the southeast would have to turn to other crops—probably food crops and livestock. The south does not produce all the food it needs.

But a shift to food crops and livestock would tend to have repercussions on midwestern farming—repercussions which in time might force farmers there to seek new lines of production.

Hence, it can be seen that the problems of King Cotton are nationwide.

FORCES DIVIDED

The cotton forces are "divided and disorganized," Pace said. "They all seem to have different ideas as to what should be done to save the cotton industry, influences, no doubt, by their own private interests."

"When a proposal is presented to congress to increase the loan on cotton, violent objections are heard from some of these other groups. When efforts are made to correct the ceilings on textiles we hear complaints from other sources."

"If this dissent and division continues the cotton industry may be destroyed."

One of the things to be discussed at the day-and-night meeting.

E Bond Sales Gain 1,306 In 24 Hours of Drive

"E" bond sales by The Constitution-Civilian Defense Third Army totaled 12,106 yesterday, a gain of 1,306 for the last 24 hours. Zone 6-B claimed distinction because of its many stars. With Lt. Col. R. H. Wolcott as chairman, J. Alvin Vaughn, precinct warden, moved to the rank of four-star general.

Other top-grade officers included W. P. Lanier, sector warden, lieutenant general; Byron Belcher and George B. Hill, major generals, and H. L. Enteklin, brigadier general. All are of Zone 6-B.

Edgar Kilpatrick, precinct warden, Zone 6, Fulton county, donned four stars, while J. B. Rucker, precinct warden of the same zone, climbed to major general. B. W. Mason, Zone 3, was named brigadier general.

Other promotions include: To lieutenant colonel, Mrs. Leo B. Wilson, Zone 3. To captain: Mrs. Mary Turnipseed, Zone 6, Fulton county; Edgar R. Gay, Mrs. Marion Saye and Mrs. B. M. Mason, Zone 3. To first lieutenant: H. Frank Ligon, Zone 8. To second lieutenant: Bobby Anderson, Zone 8, and Mrs. J. T. Marler, Zone 3.

Two-way communications between American prisoners of war and civilian internees, in the Philippines, and their families in this country will be possible through Red Cross special message service soon after their liberation, John C. WAR BONDS big guns, 81-millimeter mortars and 105 howitzers were issued in lots of four, or slightly more.

World War II's Sgt. York was in Atlanta arranging last-minute plans for a bond show in the Gainesville area sponsored by Fort Oglethorpe. He hopes to jump in one of the shows, for he wears the shiny boots of a paratrooper.

This enlisted man who claims he "still is a soldier," although generals salute him, went overseas as a private. But he came home with his stripes, the nation's highest medal—and $1,900 in war bonds.

Huff sums his feat which caused Lt. Gen. Mark Clark to decorate him in two sentences: "I volunteered to find out how many Germans were on a hill (near Anzio). I mopped up the first German machinegun nest because it got in my way."

The paratrooper, with five men, led an attack on the hill with an objective "to silence murderous German fire." Sgt. Huff approached a machinegun nest, was closer than his double-hand-span to three Germans, and turned his tommygun on them. If he hadn't killed them with the gun he would have "scared them to death" for he wore two weeks' growth of beard and the characteristic of a shower bath were just a forlorn memory.

After he demolished the nest he exposed himself, let other Germans on the hill fire at him, "so I could find out where they were." Then he returned to a creek where his five men waited, trapped through mine-infested territory for 750 yards to the remainder of his battalion. With 12 additional volunteers, he went back up the hill and "wiped out the rest of them."

His group killed 27 Germans, took 21 prisoners, and claimed the hill.

The medal was awarded primarily because he made a target of himself, modest Paul Huff explained. And, though the bullets caused a duststorm around him, he never was scratched. The first aid kit he carried in the large patch pocket of his jump suit was hit, but not Sgt. Huff.

His greatest pride seems not to be in the Congressional citation, for he refers to the heroic deed which brought its award simply as "my job." But he has "checked up" and found that of the original battalion with whom he went overseas 26 months ago, he is the only man who does not wear the Purple Heart.

Municipal Association Sessions Tomorrow

Through an error, an announcement of a meeting of the Georgia Municipal Association in yesterday's Constitution said the sessions would open here Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Zack Arnold, of Fort Gaines, executive secretary of the organization, said mayors and city officials from all sections of the state will be in Atlanta for the meeting Tuesday.

LaGrange Legion To Build Home

LAGRANGE, Dec. 3.—Members of Baxter L. Schaub Post No. 75 of the American Legion will launch a campaign to raise $50,000 for the erection of a new home as a memorial to veterans of World War II, the campaign to be initiated at an early date.

The new Legion home will be erected on the LaGrange-Chipley highway and will include, in addition to a modern clubhouse, a golf course, swimming pool and other recreational facilities.

The home which now houses the local American Legion Post has been offered for sale, the proceeds from the sale to be applied on the building fund for the new home.

Legion Dance

DONALDSONVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—There will be a dance sponsored by the Seminole County Post of the American Legion at the High school basketball shell Monday evening. The proceeds will be used by the Legion.

5,800 Briggs Workers End Strike in Detroit

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Some 5,800 striking workers of the Briggs Manufacturing Company's Mack avenue plant voted today to return to their jobs tomorrow, concluding the second of three major strikes in Detroit in two days.

The strikers, members of local 212, United Automobile Workers (CIO), agreed to a regional War Labor Board proposal to return to work pending appointment of a special arbitrator for their dispute over seniority rights of demoted foremen.

Battling Bogarts' Are Separated Again

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The "battling Bogarts" have separated again. Mrs. Humphrey's lawyer reported today.

The movie actor has left home and that Mrs. Bogart, the former Mayo Method, has retained Giesler.

"Whatever action I shall bring hasn't been determined," the attorney added. "The next move is up to him. She doesn't want a divorce and hopes for another reconciliation."

Neither Bogart nor his wife could be reached immediately.

One of the things to be discussed at the day-and-night meeting.

Alsace-Lorraine Folk Take War for Granted

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 27.—(Delayed)—(P)—You wouldn't have to read history to know that Alsace-Lorraine has been the scene of many wars.

It's like a haunted house—only more so. It seems a perfect setting for mass murders.

First there are the forts.

You have read of the Metz fortresses, how long they held back the attackers, how they finally fell one by one and how they combined the modern and ancient machinery of Mars. But those are not the only fortresses. Large and small they are scattered through the countryside, sometimes obviously fortifications, but more often seemingly something else.

Hundreds of private homes are veritable little fortresses. They are thick-walled for defense and high belied for observation.

PLANNED FOR WAR

Under these houses, the people of Alsace-Lorraine have dug their grim philosophy deep. They may have hoped for peace, but they planned for war—they and their ancestors.

Almost every building has a basement of stone or concrete, thick walled and heavy ceilinged. Some are new but even those obviously centuries old still can withstand most of modern warfare's methods.

Countless infantry command posts have been located in these basements. Above those basements buildings have been torn down twice by war during my lifetime alone, and several times during the span of some of the more ancient residents here.

But these people have rebuilt their homes and business establishments on the same sites. They have improved potential living conditions in the basements and thus have been prepared for the next war.

DESIGNED FOR DEFENSE

The countryside itself has many features, both natural and man-made which seem designed for defense. There are hills, razor-backed slopes and forests for concealment. You find countless rivers and canals, and they must be bridged anew after the old spans are blown up by retreating forces.

Too, there are dams which can be blown to flood the countryside in front of an advancing army. The road system also seems to have been planned with an eye to possible military traffic. While the secondary roads soon give way at least partially to weather and become ribbons of mud, still even they manage to hold some semblance of solidity underneath. The main highways seem to stand up miraculously under the grinding streams of modern military wheels. Many of these roads were built literally hundreds of years ago.

There's plenty of evidence of previous wars besides the fortresses and basements and road systems. There are trenches, shell craters and ruins still here from the last war. Even all-healing grass has failed to cover many of the scars.

There are cemeteries. Somehow armies always seem to fight near cemeteries. Last winter in Italy some of the boys actually moved into vaults and crypts near graveyards in order to keep dry and warm.

GRIM REMINDERS

Most of those in Italy, were civilian cemeteries but in Alsace-Lorraine many are military cemeteries, grim reminders to the soldiers who fight here again today.

Amidst all this setting, the people take war for granted. It probably would be strange if they didn't, but such a public attitude confronts you.

learned about. I got on the car and just kept on riding. I couldn't get off. I kept crying and trying to think. Of course I have been taking care of myself a long time and can keep on doing it—but now, I had the baby to think about.

"Then I made up my mind. Other girls have had their babies and kept them, I told myself, and if they can, I can. I want my baby and I believe I can make his life happy—even if his father never comes back. He can have my name and I'll make him proud of it."

The baby is a fine boy, now two months old. The young mother will soon be ready for a new job. The baby, of course, will be too young for a day nursery, so he will have to be placed in a boarding home.

Mary's first work will not pay too well, but she will get along. She will, however, need $25 a month to enable her to keep her child—and that is today's opportunity, Opportunity No. 6.

ACL Intervention In Florida Case Okayed by ICC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—The Atlantic Coast Line railroad was permitted to intervene in the Florida East Coast reorganization case yesterday in support of a petition to reopen proceedings for consideration of a new reorganization plan.

Atlantic Coast Line told the Interstate Commerce Commission it favored a proposed plan by S. A. Lynch and Joseph Van E. Wittman, minority bondholder of the Florida East Coast railroad, by which the Atlantic Coast Line would be permitted to purchase 50 per cent of the reorganized Florida East Coast's stock.

Florida, owner of approximately 55 per cent of the Florida East Coast's first and refunding bonds, opposes the Lynch-Wittman plan.

Mid-South School Group To Meet In Atlanta

CARROLLTON, Ga., Dec. 3.—The mid-south conference of the rural department of the National Education Association, sponsored by four Georgia organizations will be held at the Biltmore hotel, Atlanta, on February 1-2. It was announced here today by Miss Katie Downs, professor of West Georgia College and president of the department of supervision and curriculum development. The three other co-operating organizations are the Georgia State Department of Education, the Georgia Education Association, and the Teacher Education Council of Georgia.

The theme of the Atlanta conference will be "A Fair Chance for Every Rural Child." The program, which has been worked out by representatives of these organizations under the direction of Dr. Norman Frost, of Peabody College, as general program chairman of the rural department of the N. E. A., and Miss Jane Franchetti, as Georgia program chairman, will be concerned with implications of the recent White House conference on rural education.

Selected representatives from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee will attend the conference.

Gerald Y. Smith, president of the Atlanta Teachers' Association and principal of Hoke Smith Junior High school, is chairman of the arrangements committee. Other members of this committee include Mrs. Floyd Cooper, Atlanta, principal of Garden Hills school; Miss Julia Teasley, supervisor, Walton county; Miss Clara Lee Cone, Atlanta, city supervisor of home economics; Mrs. W. J. Webb, director of home economics for Fulton county; Miss Elise Boylston, Atlanta public schools.

Miss Elizabeth Donovan, of the State Department of Education, is chairman of the exhibits committee. Other members of this committee include Miss Sarah Jones, Miss Inez Wallace and T. G. Walters, of the State Department of Education; Miss Ruby Sewell, supervisor of Cobb county, and Miss Johnny Cox, supervisor of Pulaski county.

George Kerry Smith, of West Georgia College, is chairman of the publicity committee. Other members of this committee include L. D. Haskey, Emory; Miss Frances Champion, state vocational supervisor; Miss Mary Neel Shannon, supervisor, Atlanta public schools; W. E. Pafford, State Department of Education.

ly $31.50, according to her estimates.

She values her total clothing achievement at $83. But the poised, bespectacled 4-H'er has not concentrated on quantity to the detriment of quality in her sewing project. She achieved top honors in the 4-H dress revue contests in both her home county and district, and for that she was awarded a free trip to the Georgia 4-H Club Congress in Atlanta this year.

Aside from the fund awarded her through her clothing achievements, the Lumber City girl says she probably some day will attribute the wherewithal for her college education to a small pig, given her three years ago by a grandfather. With that pig, Marion has produced some prize live stock and won $300 in awards at dog exhibits. This she has set aside for those four valuable post-high school years.

GEORGIANS ARRIVE
A University of Georgia co-ed and an Atlanta business girl arrived here today to join 39 other former winners in the 4-H Club's national food preparation contest—for 10 years an annual event of the club's Chicago Congress.

They will be guests at a special "reunion" dinner Tuesday night. It is the first such reunion ever held for national winners in any 4-H Club project.

The pair representing Georgia claim the same home town—Jefferson. This marks the second all-expenses-paid trip won by the girls as a result of outstanding records in preparation of food and food products with which they achieved previous national titles.

ATTENDED BEFORE
Edna L. Lavender, now a senior in home economics at the University of Athens, attended the National 4-H Club Congress in 1940.

Ruth Thurman, now employed by the U. S. Treasury Department in Atlanta, made the visit in 1939. In addition to the prize of a free trip to this city, each of the two girls received a $200 college scholarship. Edna attended the Abraham Baldwin Junior College and Ruth was graduated from an Atlanta business school.

They will remain here through this, the 23rd National 4-H Club Congress and will be guests at all functions during the meeting.

Other winners in the clothing achievement contest were: Irene Loftus, Roseville, Ill.; Dorothy Fobes, Morehead, Minn.; Mariel Kolb, Berlin, Wis.; Wilma Lyon, Junction City, Ore.; Dorothy Sanford, Delta, Utah; Barbara Whiteaker, Franklin, N. H.; Margaret L. Rodebeck, Walkersville, Md.; Lucille Bott, Triadelphia, W. Va.; Anne McWilliams, Prospect, Ky.; Alma Zimmerman, Winchester, Tenn.; and Dorris Jean Edwards, Central, Ala.

Mississippi 4-H Girl Wins Highest Honor

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Donald F. Mowery, 18, Terre Haute, Ind., and Mary Jo Morgan, 19, Laurel, Miss., today were named national achievement champions of the 23rd annual 4-H Congress.

As winners of the highest honor accorded by the organization, each will receive a trophy from President Roosevelt and a $200 college scholarship.

Mowery's award was given for his achievements in managing a 158-acre farm, from which he has earned $14,000 since 1941. Miss Morgan's record showed an income of $6,808.25 from projects completed in nine years of club work, including gardening, canning, clothing, foods, poultry and home improvements.

and with this help drove out the enemy, capturing 100 prisoners.

Nine miles northwest of Duren the U. S. Ninth Army drove up to the Roer all the way from Linch to Julich—two main river strongholds. This army cleared the Germans from that part of Linch west of the river and fought bitterly to extend its hold inside Julich.

A BBC broadcast heard by NBC said the Ninth had taken all Julich lying on the Roer's west bank. Against the rising menace on the edge of the Cologne plain, the Germans sent up large numbers of warplanes in the murky weather, and anti-aircraft crews of the First Army alone claimed destruction of from 15 to 20 of them.

TOWN BURNED
A mile and a half northwest of Saarlautern, American troops found the Saar town of Nieder Limberg burned and abandoned in the first application by the Germans of scorched earth inside the Reich.

The 90th Division occupied Rehlinger, five miles northwest of Saarlautern. Seventeen miles north, pilots reported civilian refugees streaming east-out of Saarburg.

The 95th Division had its hands full as it nearly completed clearing Germans from the major part of Saarlautern on the west bank of the Saar. Hastily-mobilized "people's army" troops fought side-by-side with regulars.

It was announced tonight. Montgomery was promoted to field marshal Aug. 31.

TOKYO RAID

the big bombers from their new bases in the Mariana Islands, 1,500 miles to the south and east, the attacks on Tokyo have occurred at fairly regular three-day intervals.

This is a frequency beyond the general expectations before the 21st Bomber Command at Saipan went to work. Air force officials cautioned, however, that this rate may not be maintained in the immediate future. But, they add, both the weight and frequency of the attack will increase generally until ultimately Japan will know daily visits by huge forces of bombers.

The 20th Air Force's two bomber commands, the 20th based on the Asiatic mainland and the 21st in the Marianas, are attacking the Japanese home islands far more often, with a greater weight of bombs and a greater number of planes, than hit Germany in the opening phase of the American air war against Germany. This is happening in spite of vastly greater distances.

Musashima Attack Declared Toughest Yet

SAIPAN, Dec. 3.—(By Navy Radio)—(AP)—Saipan-based super-torpedo bombers raiding Tokyo's great Musashima aircraft factory today dodged intense anti-aircraft fire and fought off swarms of fighters but left industrial areas in flames and ruin.

Pilots said this was the toughest Tokyo raid yet but also the most successful since the target was clearly outlined in sunlight during the hour and a half assault.

Lt. John W. Iid, of Rudyard, Mich., co-pilot of the first plane to hit the target, saw his bombs touch off several explosions. Each following wave saw stronger proof of devastation below, but also had stronger interception.

An undetermined number of enemy planes were shot down. The attackers flew over thick overcast until the Tokyo area and then it was clear as a bell for 100 miles around Tokyo, related Lt. Martin Nicholson, of Kingsville, Texas.

Rebuilt Albania To Be Democracy

TIRANA, Albania, Nov. 30.—(Delap)—(AP)—Prime Minister Enver Hoxha said today in an interview that his government is rebuilding Albania as a democracy and that he favors "a strong brotherhood" of the Balkan peoples.

He said, however, that he was opposed to any Balkan federation, at least until threatened boundary disputes were cleared up. The school teacher turned soldier and politician said Allied aid was vitally needed in the gigantic task of rebuilding the tiny Adriatic nation but that so far no help had been offered.

"Albania now is virtually liberated and by our own people entirely," the premier said, "but so far no Allied relief agency has ever approached us. This is most unfortunate. Our people still are fighting the enemy but we also are starting reconstruction."

The 36-year-old premier and army commander described Albania as a "devastated country, with thousands of our people killed."

Three Georgians Killed, 1 Prisoner, 1 Wounded

Three more Atlantans have been killed in action, one Georgian is a prisoner and one has been wounded, according to War Department telegrams received by their families this week.

Killed:

PVT. WELDON A. NASH, 23, Infantry, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Nash, and husband of Mrs. Bertha Nash, all of route 2, Decatur, was killed in action October 5 in Germany.

Overseas since last July, he was wounded in France in August. He received his training at Camp Blanding, Fla., and prior to entering the service in December, 1943, he was employed by Jones Construction Company, Brunswick, Georgia.

In addition to his wife and parents, Pvt. Nash is survived by a son, Weldon Nash Jr.; four sisters, Mrs. C. D. Hutchins, of Atlanta; Mrs. E. W. Dillard, of Tucker; Mrs. C. E. Davis, and Mrs. Jack Bassett, both of Decatur; and four brothers, Cpl. Larkin F. Nash, with the Army in India; H. E. Nash, of Tucker; J. C. Nash, of Brunswick, and Donald Nash, of Decatur.

T. SGT. GEORGE H. JOHNSON, Army Engineer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis E. Johnson, of 202 Doane street, S. W., was killed in action November 4 on Leyte, P. I.

Overseas for seven months, Sgt. Johnson was an electrician for the Electrical Installations and Repair Company in Atlanta before entering the service in January, 1942.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Christine Britton and Miss Barbara Johnson, and a brother, Ronald Johnson, all of Atlanta.

QUARTERMASTER JOHN G. HOLT, 18, Naval Reserve, son of Mrs. Alma Landers Holt, of 1587 West View drive, S. W., was killed in action October 24.

Overseas five months, Holt was stationed in New Guinea. He entered the service in June, 1943.

Prisoner of War:

PVT. JEP BUSSEY, 20, Infantry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bussey, of Franklin, is now a prisoner of war of the German government. He had been missing in action in France since August 28.

Overseas for more than a year, Pvt. Jep Bussey entered the Army in March, 1943.

Wounded:

ELBERT J. THRIFT, Army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carey Thrift, of Waycross, Route 4, was wounded in action October 20 on Leyte island in the Philippines, and has been awarded the Purple Heart.

He has two brothers in the Army: Pvt. Carey C. Thrift, in Germany, and Pvt. Bernice Thrift, at Camp Blanding, Fla.

Georgia Soldier Faces N. Y. Homicide Charge

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Three soldiers, charged with homicide in the fatal stabbing of a 22-year-old garage worker, were held without bail today by Magistrate Leonard McGee in felony court.

The accused men, Pvt. Sherod Kelly, 27, of Brunswick, Ga.; Pfc. Ob. Oberson, 38, of Louisville, Ky.; and Pvt. Jerome Rose, 19, of Potsdam, N. Y., will be arraigned December 11.

Police said that they participated in a fight Saturday in which Charles Duval was stabbed.

V. J. Kindel, 90, Newsman, Dies

V. J. Kindel, 90, formerly of Columbia, S. C., retired newsman, who lived with his son, T. C. Kindel, of 1400 Erie street, S. E., died yesterday in a private hospital.

The body will be taken to Columbia for funeral services and burial. Paul T. Donehoo is in charge of arrangements here.

Survivors include another son, W. A. Kindel; and two daughters, Mrs. John Baxley, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Carey Orr, of Winnetka, Ill.

Boy, 9, Burned To Death In Cowboy, Indian Game

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 3.—(UP)—A harmless game of "cowboys and Indians" resulted in tragedy today when nine-year-old Ernest Bell was tied to a stake in old frontier days style and burned to death.

The youth was tied by some school chums with heavy rope after being captured in his role as an "Indian," and then was set afire by 10-year-old Waytus Nixon.

Ernest's clothing ignited and he was badly burned by the time passersby could reach him and smother the flames. He was rushed to the hospital here where he died three hours later.

Callaway Plan Off to a Good Start

Generous helpings of crow were being served up over the weekend to those who had scoffed at the possibility of Cason Callaway securing 700 Georgians willing to risk a thousand dollars each in an attempt to prove the physical and fiscal feasibility of soil rehabilitation.

It has been a bare four months since Mr. Callaway originally outlined his proposal before some 700 odd members of Atlanta's civic clubs. The Callaway Plan, as it came to be called, envisaged the setting up of 100 corporations, each consisting of seven $1,000 shares, each share to be owned and voted by individual business and professional men. Each corporation was to purchase an average or sub-marginal farm of approximately 100 acres, hire a manager with knowledge of progressive farming methods, and set out on a continuing program of soil rebuilding. The idea is not only that 700 Georgia business and professional leaders will learn through practice the problems of the agriculture upon which our state's economy is so largely built, but also that—by selling the rehabilitated farms at a profit in from three to five years—the economic advisability of soil conservation will be clearly demonstrated.

Well, the first—and what many considered the most difficult—phase of the Callaway plan has been successfully completed: Seven hundred Georgians have put $700,000 in banks throughout the state to form the 100-farm corporations for which Mr. Callaway called. And the goal was reached, incidentally, a full month ahead of schedule.

The success of this first phase is an encouraging indication of the average citizen's realization of the importance of agriculture to Georgia's well-being. And it is a real tribute to Cason Callaway's unrelenting efforts to aid in the economic development of his native state.

The Callaway Plan has, to be sure, just begun the most important aspect of its operation. Much thought and labor must be expended if it is to achieve the ambitious goal which its originator has set. The difficulties which it faces are multiplied by the exigencies of the war. To overcome them will require constant attention and work.

We have, however, every confidence in its ultimate success.

The spirit and will which got it off to such an auspicious start insure that it will achieve its prescribed goal. And that the people of Georgia will be everlastingly indebted to those who, through the Callaway Plan, have laid down the pattern for the state's agricultural future.

Time Fights Against Us

Last week's review of the war with Japan, by the Office of War Information, provides some statistical factors which should provoke solemn consideration.

The Japanese, states the OWI, have four million men under arms. Furthermore, they can induct, train and arm another two million without sacrificing manpower for their war industries. We, and the Chinese in their seven years of conflict, have not killed more than an approximate million Jap troops.

The position of China is, today, more precarious than since the war in that country began. We must always remember this.

The OWI also points out that, if the Japanese should begin to draw on the manpower of the nations they have conquered, and now control, almost limitless millions of soldiers could be drafted to fight for them.

We may, in this country, attach little importance to the Japanese propaganda line they use among the populations of the countries they have overrun. That propaganda line is "The Orient for Orientals." We would be fatuous, indeed, if we did not recognize that this contention must have strong appeal for millions of the eastern peoples. We cannot fool ourselves by assuming that the peoples of lands exploited by the white man will not, many of them, approve of a war to drive that white man out of the lands of the yellow races.

All of which is convincing argument that the chief problem facing the United Nations in the Far East, is the problem of time. We and our allies, if we would conquer the Japanese, must do so before he has time to arm his great reserves of manpower and to indoctrinate the millions of available manpower in other Oriental lands.

We have, in the Pacific, won important victories. But the vital issue today is, can we, with our superbombers, so smash Japanese industry, both in the Jap homeland and in occupied territories, that there will be no arms with which Japanese troops can fight and can we destroy Japanese military might before she can draw millions of other Orientals to the standard of the Rising Sun?

Armies of Chinese fighting for Japan are not inconceivable, if Chinese resistance should end. In fact, Chinese from the Japanese-occupied areas of China have already fought against their fellow nationals under Chiang Kai-shek.

Standing Joke?

Editor Constitution: You say that decision of telephone strikers to return to work is a victory for the War Labor Board.

I work for the Southern Railway and the Labor Board is a standing joke with us or anyone who knows anything about it. And its statement about the cost of living is just about the last straw as far as faith in it is concerned. You very seldom hear of the board doing anything unless somebody builds a fire under it, and then they want you to go back to work before they do anything, and then they set down and fool around till the workers get hot again before they do anything at all.

Your editorial does all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough, because these cases a lot of the time have been before the board so long labor has to get up on its hind feet and raise hell to get them to act.

Now if you want to help labor on the job and be impartial with your editorials make a few remarks about the dilly-dallying of the Labor Board.

The fact they went back to work hasn't settled anything.

Daily Chapters

Editor, Constitution: I am sure that I express to you and your great paper the thanks of multitudes of Georgians for your publishing chapters from the Bible each day from Thanksgiving to Christmas and urging renewed interest in the Bible. In a day when the world is torn asunder by war and trouble we need to study anew the Word of God. Thank you for your superb service in the great and worthy movement.

W. H. FAUST, Atlanta.

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

Approval

Editor, Constitution: The Atlanta Council of Churchwomen wishes to express to Virginia Polhill Price its approval and appreciation for her article of November 28, entitled "Wonders What He Thinks Now," and also to The Atlanta Constitution for publishing it. We as a nation, are accomplishing miracles in some ways now, but our growth is uneven—our lack of spiritual perception being one of our weaknesses. The United Council of Churchwomen meeting nationally in Columbus, Ohio, recently charged itself with being the conscience of a community, and so each branch is alert to and appreciative of trends of constructive thought, especially concerning understanding and charity between people of different races.

MRS. J. F. HEARD, Member, Christian Social Relations Committee, Atlanta Council of Churchwomen.

Safety

Editor, Constitution: Please allow me to thank you for what you have done to help people to live. Your paper has from time to time warned people about jaywalking and they go right on and their names appear in your publishing chapters from the Bible each day from Thanksgiving to Christmas and urging renewed interest in the Bible. In a day when the world is torn asunder by war and trouble we need to study anew the Word of God. Thank you for your superb service in the great and worthy movement.

"I Did Not Vote"

Editor Constitution: The other day a friend of mine who was disappointed with the election of Roosevelt said:

"I did not vote, and I am disgusted that the American people have so little sense as to elect any man as president for a fourth term. It is a dangerous thing for the people to do this."

This put me to thinking about the people who do not vote on election day whether we are selecting any man from ballot to president to run the country. If a man will not, in the first place, vote to select our officers, has he got a right to criticize the result with which he would have nothing to do? If we are going to let others pick these men we ought to keep our mouths shut, even if a mistake is made.

It is really pitiful to see what a small per cent of our voters take any interest in the exercising of their right to cast a ballot. They would be fighting mad if you tried to take this right from them but what is a privilege worth that is never used?

The time has come in this hour of national crisis when we must have unity in the appreciation of our right to vote; then unity at the polls in exercising that right; then unity in backing to the limit the men we choose to be our servants.

Just to stand on the sidelines and snipe at the existing order with bitter words is poor citizenship unless we have first tried in every way to create a better order of things. If you won't vote don't talk.

Vote your convictions and by that action you create the right to criticize. Don't be an isolationist and thereby forfeit your right to be a part, an articulate part, of the existing order.

A Short Essay On the Poll Tax

Let's discuss, not argue, the poll tax.

It begins to look as if that tax, as a prerequisite to voting, is sliding down hill fast. It may give up the ghost before federal legislation is enacted and court-tested to remove it.

It is dying because there isn't going to be anyone left to pay it, excepting a small group which will tire of carrying the load.

Arkansas has already enacted a bill which permanently exempts her service men and women of this year from paying a poll tax. With the old people long ago exempted, this leaves a restricted group which alone must pay the tax.

Other poll tax states must follow the Arkansas lead. It doesn't make sense that a man who has been off fighting for his country for two or three hard, bloody years, should come home to find that he must pay for the privilege of voting for some political candidate to represent him in office.

It is safe to say that one of the first bills which will be introduced in the Georgia legislature, which meets next month, will be a bill to exempt the men and women of Georgia who have served in this war from payment of a poll tax.

Georgia already exempts her people over 60, and the state has thousands of such fine men and women. The state also exempts, between the ages of 18 and 21, her young voters.

When the state's service people are exempted, only a few of us will be left to pay it. It will become, in effect, class legislation. The tax will occupy an even more untenable position than it now occupies and will be abandoned, as it properly should.

Fear While it is a perfectly reasonable sort of statement to say that a person who isn't willing to pay $2 a year for the right to vote isn't much of a citizen, it is not a logical statement.

Acts as a deterrent to voting because if a person fails to pay the tax it begins to accumulate fines and penalties and within a few years assumes a sum which is formidable to many persons. It can, in some states, cost as much as $30 to regain the right to vote. In Georgia it can cost almost $20. To a person making, as thousands were before the war, $20 or less per week, the poll tax accumulation was a financial barrier against which no assaults were made. These persons didn't vote.

The poll tax was laid on not entirely as an anti-Negro measure. The interests of many "interests" always have been served by having few persons go to the polls. It was easy to sell it on a prejudice basis.

Now we know that it disfranchises, on the average, six white persons for every Negro kept away from the polls by the tax. Despite this fact there are those who raise the racial cry against removing it.

Southern States The experiences of other southern states are of interest. North Carolina repealed the tax in 1920. Louisiana followed in 1934 and Florida in 1937. In 24 years North Carolina has moved far ahead of other southern states in popular participation in government and now can count a majority of its citizens at the polls on election days.

Florida showed an increase in voting of 140 per cent once the tax was removed. This was in primaries. In general elections the increase was 48 per cent. Louisiana's increase was 44.5 per cent and that despite the requirement that every voter must sign the poll book in the sheriff's office every year.

North Carolina's and Florida's Negro population is 27 per cent. Louisiana's is 32 per cent. That is about the percentage of the average poll tax state. Negroes have not "taken over" either Louisiana, Florida or North Carolina. North Carolina has no white primary and Arkansas has abandoned, along with exempting all service men from poll tax, its white primary. The supreme court has cut the roots of that type primary which remains in only a few states.

One of the south's troubles, contributing to many frustrations, is fear. We have ample evidence, from old-line southern states, that the poll tax fear is without substance just as are many other fears.

There are other portents in the sky. If the electoral college is abandoned, which it likely will not be, the Republican party will immediately set up aggressive party organizations in the south. If the electoral college plan is revised, as it very well may be so that each party receives a percentage of the electoral votes of each state based on its percentage of the popular vote, the Republicans also will be active. The Democratic party would have to fight for votes. They would not want a restrictive tax, which keeps five or six white persons away from the polls to every Negro, under any such setup.

Hence this little essay is presented merely as a discussion for the Monday morning class.

Give Me the Nineties And World at Peace

Yes, yes, I know. We did without a lot of things, "way back in the nineties." No automobiles, no movies, mighty few telephones and a majority of the houses boasted if they had incandescent gas lights, to say nothing of electricity.

Streets were rough, most of them cobblestoned, and we had not discovered the delight of breathing air full of the fumes of burned gasoline and the odor of scorched rubber. Instead, we were accustomed to the smell of equine excreta we never thought about it.

Our pleasures were simple and, perhaps, we were. We knew nothing of fast travel, except when we boarded certain trains. Yes, they did make 60 miles per hour on the rails, or better, some of them.

In fact, we didn't travel much. Maybe a train trip of a hundred miles or so at summer vacation time, but that, for most of us, was about all.

We enjoyed our home areas, though, and never knew we were missing much, most of us, by generally staying put. Simple, primitive, dull sort of folks, weren't we? But I don't know what I'd swap the modern improvements of today for those old days. For we had one great advantage that you young folks of today don't enjoy.

We were a world at peace. Comparatively speaking. "Oh, yes, I know there were various minor league wars recurring, most of the time. But they weren't much, they didn't affect our daily lives to speak of. Compared to nowadays, our world of the nineties was, truly, a quiet and peaceful place.

Longevity? The statisticians say the average individual, in those old days of half a century gone, didn't live so long. Surgery and medicine and preventive science have advanced so much we can live 10 or 15 years longer than our forebears. But I don't know. The average longevity must have been lowered, taking the world as a whole, by the casualties of war and of wholesale slaughter of civilian populations we of today have witnessed.

And to live in peace, even if for fewer years, has compensation. As far as my own experience and memory goes, we lived in a sort of complacent, contented world of assured security from war. The youth of my generation never imagined the possibility of war involving the civilized world. Such wars were, if we ever considered the subject, past events, barbaric outbreaks which would never occur again—we were too sensible, too civilized for that sort of thing.

We were a little puzzled over the fact that the Franco-Russian war of 1870 had been fought so short a time before. And the Civil War—as we called it—in the United States was likewise rather recent history. But that didn't alter the fact that we in England had long outgrown the childishness of war, except in distant, outlandish places where uncivilized tribes had to be broken of such unpleasant habits as banditry and treacherous guerrilla conflict. But it couldn't come to us. So unthinkable was such a thing, we didn't think about it.

No Conscription In any event, there would never be such a thing as military conscription in England. No, sir! That was a foreign custom, not British. British soldiers are all volunteers and we had been taught "one volunteer is worth four pressed men." That was why British troops had always won their wars of the past. They were volunteers and, simply, better fighting men than those of any foreign land.

Somewhat, regardless of all the rumblings and forewarnings and portents, this simple faith that we should never again be involved in a war between great nations, stuck with us. England was safe, no enemy could overcome the mighty British navy and we were utterly secure.

That faith clung with me, long after I had crossed the Atlantic and come to live on this side. It was something unthought out, but as basic as the function of breathing.

Then came 1914. I think the day I read the news that Britain had declared war on Germany, after the Kaiser's troops had violated Belgian soil, was the greatest shock of my life. I was in Athens, at the time, on business. There was no possibility of talking business with anyone that day, anyway, nor could I have talked intelligently on any other subject.

Literally, I sat all morning in the hotel lobby, there, stunned and perplexed.

Since that day almost one-third of the years have been war years. We are becoming accustomed to the daily presence of major conflict on this world of ours. But I'd like to go back to the confidence in lasting peace of the nineties. Even if we did live in a mistaken security.

Proper Fuel

A weed will grow in a crack in a cement sidewalk. Plants of all kinds will grow in the poorest of soil if they have sunshine and moisture, but they will be weak and sickly and stunted.

Some years ago a famous novelist reported in a monthly magazine the experiments he had made with plants in Florida. He had the soil of a field analyzed to discover what chemicals and minerals it lacked. Then he added these missing things, in proper proportion, to the soil of one-half of his field and left the other half untreated.

Of course the plants that grew in the poor soil were small and weak and sickly, while those that grew in the enriched soil were sturdy and luxuriant. That was nothing new, but a new thing soon appeared.

When the usual pests and diseases invaded the field, the weak and stunted plants were soon crippled or killed, while the strong and healthy plants in the adjoining field suffered no ill effect.

Apparently the laws of health apply to plants as to people. The most effective way to overcome disease is not to combat and survive it, but to be so strong and healthy it cannot get a start.

The rest is a job for medical men. Some of them—the ones called dreamers—are already working on the theory that the way to keep people healthy is to feed them produce from soil that contains all the elements needed to produce healthy plants.

We are composed of chemicals, and we must have the right chemicals and minerals in proper proportion in order to thrive. We get them in the form of pills, but the natural way is best—and the natural way is to get them second-hand.

A survey some years ago revealed that in one district near the Great Lakes, 45 per cent of the school children had incipient goitre for want of iodine in the soil.

You doubtless have read much about the county in Texas where nobody has tooth cavities. When people who have decayed teeth move into the county, and live on local products, their teeth mend and return to normal.

Most of our people, including the rich, suffer from some diet deficiency. Our soil has been robbed and eroded until it can no longer produce the kind of food we need.

We have gone wild about vitamins—which are essential to life—but we need not take pills to get the things we need.

The natural and effective way to take "medicine" is to feed it to the soil, which will feed it to the plants, so we can get it in our vegetables, fruits, grains, eggs, milk and beefsteak.

A PUBLIC DEMAND

(Elbert Star)

In view of the lukewarmness with which the public received the final action of the new constitution commission, Governor Arnall has done well in calling the commission back for further consideration. There is general dissatisfaction with three omissions from the draft which the people consider of supreme importance. The chief of the three is the matter of what is known as home rule. The commission has an opportunity to right a wrong and to give the people what they want. Should the commission now fail to provide for it, the offer they make may be defeated at the polls, if it isn't turned down by the legislature.

Barber's Razor Dull? Then Call the Law

Barbering, it now appears, has become one of the hazardous professions, taking its place alongside such dangerous pursuits as test-piloting and clerking in bargain basements.

Not that there hasn't been some danger all along of blistering your hands while transferring hot towels to the customer's face.

But now, judging from an incident which took place in Yonkers last week, fatal practitioners are legally liable to prosecution if their clients aren't fully satisfied. One Frank Pancelli found that out when he was arrested on a charge of attempted felonious assault on a customer's charge that he received too rough a shave.

I knew the customer was always right, at least in previous years. But I never heard of one taking it so seriously before.

Pancelli is being held of $500 bail. If a barber's ignoring of "once over-lightly" is that big a crime, giving a customer that peeled-onion effect when he asks for a "little off the top" must come under the head of felonies.

And they can't afford to get careless with the singing tapers, either. Arson is a penitentiary offense.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Why Not Use Gas On the Japanese?

WASHINGTON.—After the first bombing of Tokyo by Gen. Doolittle the Japanese government took part in that raid who later were captured in China.

News of that dastardly deed caused the greatest upsurge of revulsion against Japan of any act since the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. President Roosevelt himself was moved to serve notice on the Japanese warlords that those responsible for the crime would be held personally accountable in the victory we are determined to win.

Recently, since the new bombing attacks on Tokyo have begun, Japanese propagandists have warned that any of our airmen captured after being forced to bail out on similar missions will likewise be put to death.

Thus far the propagandists have been careful not to say that the death penalty will be imposed by the Japanese government. Instead, they have pretended to say that the Japanese people themselves have become so aroused over the bombings that they will kill on the spot any American soldier parachuting to earth after an air attack.

Japanese government heads, it seems, dare not make the threats officially. They may be restrained by fear of retaliation. But to a member of our air forces parachuting to safety over Japan it matters little whether he is to be put to death, whether the deed is done under official sanction or at the hands of civilian mobs whose organization is encouraged by the government. The results are the same.

The effect of the warnings now pouring out of Tokyo is to threaten our airmen with destruction, or those of them on whom the Japs are able to lay hands.

Such an act of course is contrary to all the civilized rules of warfare. It is an act of barbarism of the worst sort.

No Retaliation The Japs are able to make threats of the kind because there is no way in which we can retaliate in kind. They are not bombing any of our cities, hence there is no opportunity for us to threaten a similar fate to any of their airmen likewise engaged in bombing missions.

Neither can we retaliate by threatening to kill their airmen captured from other missions. We cannot do so for the reason that we have never succeeded in capturing many of their airmen. For that matter, we have not succeeded in capturing any considerable number of their armed forces at all. The pagan philosophy of the Nipponese is of such a strange quality that their soldiers and sailors commit suicide rather than surrender.

There is therefore little in the way of retaliation on the score of an eye for an eye with which we may threaten them, or restrain them. Even if we had as many of their war prisoners, which we have not, as they have of ours we still would not be able to hold them in check against such threats.

The difference is that neither the Japanese government nor the Japanese people themselves place the same valuation on human life as we do. A Japanese soldier who allows himself to be captured in war is presumed by his government to be dead. He is treated as an outcast if he ever returns to his native land after such an experience. He is supposed to die rather than surrender.

Fortunately, however, other means are at our disposal to force the pagan Japs to accept a higher code of morals in the conduct of war. We are in position to threaten retaliation in a form designed to bring them a little more to their senses.

We can do this by threatening to employ poison gas against their cities whose civilian populations are goaded into taking the lives of our airmen.

What our government leaders should do, it therefore seems, is to serve notice on the Tokyo government that if any of our captured airmen are killed in the manner threatened we will consider that sufficient provocation to send our Superfortresses against their cities armed not with explosive bombs but with poison gas. That more than anything else would be certain to bring the uncivilized little brown men to their senses. Because one squadron of our big bombers armed with cylinders of mustard gas in lieu of bombs is capable of snuffing out more lives than a thousand-ton raid of explosives or incendiaries could produce.

There is no better way of stopping these stupid threats from Tokyo.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Plans for Defeated Germany

It is now established that we deem it desirable after the defeat of the German armies to turn over the administration of Germany, as soon as possible, to a friendly German government.

That means that we must have in Germany people upon whom reliance can be placed. The German defeat must be so digested that it will result in revulsion from Nazism in the direction of a popular desire for peace, combined with an effort to re-enter, by good deeds, the fellowship of decent peoples.

If that is our program, what have we done to achieve it, and what have other countries done?

The Soviet Union is the only one of the Allied nations whose political effort since the beginning of the war has accompanied its military effort. Here the effort has been to put first things first: Win the war, and then deal with the political and psychological problems. The Soviets have shown more foresight. Sooner or later the war would be won and Germany would be occupied. Eventually Germany would have to have a government, and the government should be one friendly to the Soviet Union. And therefore, from the beginning, the Soviets took measures to bring this about.

This is not an isolated policy. The Soviets wanted a Pasiviki government in Finland—and they have it. They wanted a friendly Polish government, and they have made great efforts to obtain it. They wanted a workers' and peasants' government in Rumania and Bulgaria, and they have already partly achieved it. They backed Tito in Yugoslavia—and they won.

Their preparations for Germany are consistent with all this. They have behaved intelligently.

Now actually, as far as Germany is concerned, their opportunities were less than our own. No great number of influential German exiles took refuge in the Soviet Union as they did in Britain and especially in the United States.

Practically the only resource that the Soviets had were a few old Communist leaders and German prisoners of war. It is out of the latter that they have recruited a large anti-Nazi organization that might form the basis for a new regime in Germany.

It is folly to assume that these prisoners were, at the outset, more pro-Russian than the hundreds of thousands of German prisoners of war, interned in the United States, are pro-American. All the early reports indicated that the Russians could not find anti-Nazi among the prisoners. But they went at the problem systematically. An excellent account of the whole process is given by Henry Cassidy in the current issue of the "Atlantic Monthly"—together with another report by James H. Powers showing what is not done here.

In this country we made a half-hearted attempt to isolate outspoken anti-Nazis, whose numbers are few. The Soviets, with more intelligence, isolated from the mass the obviously leading Nazis. They did not, like ourselves, put their prison camps in charge of commandants who could not speak a word of German and had no political concerns. As bit by bit they combed out the more obvious Nazis, who, there as here, had got themselves into positions of camp leadership, the attitude among the rank and file of German soldiers began to change.

In spite of the enormous shortage of newspaper in the Soviet Union, they were assisted by a big German-language weekly. The result is that today at least one hundred thousand German prisoners of war in Russia, including numbers of high-ranking officers, are vehemently anti-Nazi and resolved

LOUIS BROMFIELD

Destructive Inventors

(Editor's Note: No Westbrook Pegler column is available for publication today.)

Yesterday I saw something which gave me the scare of my life. It was a quadruple Bofors antiaircraft gun. I watched it for nearly 10 minutes while the guns wheeled, raised and lowered, finding the range of planes that were out of sight above hypothetical clouds. There was no man within 10 yards of the big quadruple gun, yet it went on functioning, delicately, skillfully, with a terrible precision, being operated by remote control upon calculations provided through the workings of radar.

The gun was being put through final tests at the Navy ordnance plant at York, Pa., and much of its insides were uncovered so that you could see the appalling intricacy of its machinery, very nearly as complex as the insides of a human mechanism. There were boxes filled with intricate wires and small motors, all responding to the orders of a man who was nowhere near the gun. It was a beautiful thing, made of alloy steel and a dozen other metals, like a jewel, clean and shining. For one like myself, who is not mechanically minded, that shining machine was a thing of awe and wonder.

Thinking about it, the awe and wonder changed presently into fear for myself, for the nation, for the whole world, because the machine seemed to be simply an intricate, almost living organism. It became a symbol of evil and wickedness. It was built not for creation or the benefit of mankind but for destruction. It represented something well over a hundred thousand dollars in money earned by the sweat of mankind, to destroy other machines which cost hundreds of thousands of dollars of money earned by sweat and hardship. The plant in which it was built cost nine million dollars, possibly to be abandoned after the war. Behind and around it worked nearly four thousand men and women whose physical and mental effort had gone into its creation. On every side stood other machines costing from twenty thousand dollars each upward. Their task was to cut metal, to fit the parts of the monster into each other to make possible the uncanny action of those four muzzles twisting and turning, raising and lowering, practicing to destroy and nullify what man earned, his peace and safety and tranquility, his capacity to tend and nourish advances in civilization and eventually, perhaps to destroy it, very opportunity and initiative and ingenuity which had given birth to this monster.

And behind all this—the plant, the men and women working there, the blighting taxes, the machine itself—another picture equally appalling, that of mechanical industry itself. At times it seems to me that we might well ask: "What has MAN wrought?" A world filled with social disintegration, great cities where workers lead a miserable life, which is scarcely any longer human, immense dislocation of economic and social forces, a world in which spiritual values and civilization in its best sense have been thrust aside in favor of a material world in which automobiles, plumbing and Bofors guns are regarded as measures of man's development.

It occurred to me that this shiny, intricate monster, to destruction bore a curious symbolic resemblance to a monstrosity of the Old Testament—the Tower of Babel, another structure raised in defiance of God and the natural law. The significance of that fact that the workers were stricken with a confusion of tongues but that they were so stricken because, swollen with pride, they had set up man's defiance of God and natural law.

That wickedly beautiful Bofors gun was as much a symbol of man's destructive arrogance as the Tower, or of Ajax defying the lightning. If the human race cannot find a way out of our war, it is doomed to be weakened and destroyed by the very instruments it has created. The bomber, the V-1 and the V-2, that Bofors gun—all these are merely hints of what is to come unless man mends his ways and subdues the very monster he has created.

What is the answer? That we need able men to conduct our political and economic affairs, men of the caliber, ingenuity and ability of those who have created our terrible mechanical world with its destructive shift of values? Or is it the fault of the people who need greater understanding, less laziness, more intelligence? Or is it that every "civilization" by some natural law contains within itself the seeds of its own destruction and that we are already well along the ancient path of Egypt and China, Greece and Rome? I do not profess to know. I only know that we are well along the way toward destruction of all those values of the spirit, which add up to civilization. The confusion of social tongues has descended upon us, dividing us as the men who attempted the Tower of Babel were divided, in utter futility. The economic situation of a powerful nation like Great Britain has been wrecked, possibly beyond repair. It would seem that the human race of our time, by being given its last chance and that it is up to mankind to find its way out.

Watching that wonderful and terrible gun, I could only think, "What a pity that ingenuity, all that human effort, all that money could not have been spent on something built for the good of the human race—on food, on education, on genetics, on fighting disease and starvation, on breeding better men rather than making them worse or destroying them and all they have struggled toward for so many centuries."

I suppose in the end, it is up to you and me, and the millions of fellow sufferers, it is a gloomy prospect, the world being what it is. Indeed, it may be too late for this civilization to save itself.

"Sen. Barkley predicts federal taxes can be cut in half after the war."—News item.

Well blessed is he who tightly clings to hope, that hope which ever springs to promise future happiness and helps us meet the strain and stress.

The jackass labors through the day with visions of a bale of hay And men, alike, will toil and slave, deny themselves and grimly save In hopes the time will come when they can see good fortune come their way.

We hope each war will be the last as people hoped it in the past, And once we hoped for . . . you know what . . . two chickens stewing in each pot.

Two cars for all, so Hoover said; and then we pawed our shoes for bread And little hopes from coast to coast, lay down and yielded up the ghost. Alas for promises benign, we swallow sinker, hook and line And now they say we'll see the axe applied with vigor to the tax.

Our brows are low, our heads are flat but we're too smart to swallow that For some emergency will send the taxes on an upward trend, Some gentleman in congress hall will pull his hair and loudly bawl "Our country, bless her, I would die and join the angels up on high."

"To help perpetuate her fame and add more lustre to her name, . . . 'I hope you'll join me on this bill, may Heaven bless you if you will.' "That bill, my friend, will hold a phrase to keep you telling all your days;

It may appear a harmless thing but buried, somewhere, is the sting, The same old bravado, and goodness knows it's older than the Pharaohs. But let us bravely hold our hope 'til congressmen run out of soap.

Today's Bible Reading

(The month between Thanksgiving and Christmas is National Bible Reading Month. To encourage renewed interest in the Scriptures, The Constitution is daily reprinting one chapter from the Bible.)

PSALM 46.

God Is the Eternal Refuge of His People.

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.

2 Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;

3 Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

4 There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the Most High.

5 God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early.

6 The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttered his voice, the earth melted.

7 The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

8 Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the earth.

9 He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.

10 Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth.

11 The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Opportunity Knocks Again

Gov. Arnall has called another meeting of the commission to revise the constitution. Thus once again he has shown the courage and energy and vision that have characterized his leadership since he became head of our state.

The commission is composed of 23 able Georgians, outstanding in their particular fields. It is most important that all members of the commission be present at this final session.

Work of this character is often a thankless job. The public is rarely aware of the time and effort that go into such an undertaking. There is no member of the commission who was not already engaged with his own private affairs and public responsibilities. To assume the additional burden of studying the constitution of Georgia in order to recommend changes has been and is a big job. It may be that the commission tried to do this job in too short a time or without technical assistance who might have helped in matters of research and organization. However, there is enough ability and experience in the body itself to do the job properly if the final report is the work of the entire membership.

There are many differences of opinion among members of the commission. From the beginning certain ones worked to prevent any real changes from being made. On the other hand there were others who wanted a very complete revision which would correct most of the fundamental weaknesses of our present state setup. It is now clear that a complete constitutional revision will not be recommended. It is also clear that the commission will have failed unless it has the courage to recommend certain changes that are needed immediately. In his call to convene, the Governor has named three basic changes that are necessary now: (1) Limited home rule; (2) a merit system for state employees; and (3) constitutional price fixing.

In articles that are to follow, we shall explain why the League of Women Voters believes that there is serious and immediate need for these three changes.

All members of the commission do not favor all three of these measures. But, whether they support the Governor's progressive program or whether they oppose it, it is imperative that every member attend the final meetings of this important body. These 23 citizens have accepted a heavy responsibility, and the people of Georgia expect them to take a clear and open stand on what they believe to be best for our state. A great opportunity rests in their hands, and it is rightly expected of them to make the most of it. Upon a wisely revised constitution the future strength and progress of Georgia will depend.

BOB HOPE

Welcomes Crosby's Return

ATLANTA.—Flash—Crosby is back on the air. Meat Packers Gazette please copy. You know Crosby, the Lionel Barrymore of songs. Crosby just got back from touring Scotland, England and France. It's amazing how much trouble he will go to to sell a few extra boxes of that cheese . . . but Bing really went overseas to entertain the troops. It's just a silly rumor that he was trying to find a golf ball he slipped out of his hand at Lakeside. Besides, it was last seen over Iceland. . . . But Crosby really enjoyed himself in France. It was so wonderful being in a place where people spoke of that famous American Frank and meant Roosevelt instead of Sinatra. . . . Of course, Bing has lots of fans who wear bobby socks too. It's just that their long underwear hangs down over them. . . . Some people compare Crosby's voice with Sinatra's voice. But that's ridiculous and absurd. They have entirely different styles of singing. Sinatra sings through his right nostril and Crosby sings through his left.

ROYAL ARCH GUNNISON

Goes Along on a Leyte Relief Mission Flight

(This is the first of two articles describing a flight with food and ammunition to relieve a GI outfit in the Philippines cut off by a Jap force. Royal Arch Gunnison was in the relief plane.)

SOMEWHERE IN THE PHILIPPINES—(By Wireless)—A trip in a "Biscuit Bomber" is no tea party—at least, not this one. A GI outfit had been cut off for five days inside the Jap lines and not only had their food run out, but they were rapidly firing away the last of their mortar and machine-gun ammunition. The Japs were moving up on them. Something had to be done—and done quickly.

At the same time I was sitting on a box table that served as an office for a supply transport, Colonel at Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army jungle headquarters when the phone buzzed. The story came in rapidly from field headquarters.

"Okay . . . okay . . . We'll make the first drop in about three hours. Think they'll be all right until then? . . . Okay . . . okay . . . Roger . . . over and out."

"Hey, Joe!" the colonel yelled at a tall, lean captain who was striding through the grate, acolyte in camouflage, bamboo hut. "Here's your first job."

And that's how I happened to go on the first emergency supply drop made in the Philippines. Joe turned out to be Capt. Joe Turner, former Texas A. & M. football star and rancher from Marfa, Texas.

As we bumped up the winding, single-track road to the shoeing airstrip, Joe said, "There's our ship," and pointed out a grasshopper-like C-47 with a big brown camouflage paint job and a canopy over the wide-open side door.

I glanced inside the C-47. Its broad board floor clear up to the pilot and radio cabin was covered with a double layer of three-foot long wooden crates wrapped with heavy rope. Each crate had a chubbyparapatch case on top. This was the 5,500-pound load of ammunition and food that shortly would be reinforcing those GI's dug in on a narrow ridge 80 miles across the island from us—if we could find the outfit and if we could get low enough to make the drop accurately and finally if the Nips didn't plug us before we got all the stuff out the door.

Capt. Turner pulled his long legs into the plane ahead of me just as the starboard engine coughed and roared out. The black-haired Texan turned to his three drop sergeants. "How many bundles," he asked. "Thirty-one, sir." "That means about eight runs over the target," he shook his head and turned to me. "Still want to go along?"

Above the roar of the engines I shouted, "Let's go!" The skipper, Lt. Johnny Clote, also of Tulsa, came back and stuck his close-cropped head through the door. "Hey, Joe," he said, "put some ropes across this stuff to keep it from shifting when we take off. Then I want everyone forward. It's a short run on this strip and we're overweight."

As we taxied out to our take-off position behind P-38's and P-40's, two lanky ex-cowhands, Sgt. August Webber of El Paso and Sgt. Mitch David of Prescott, Ariz., and Missouri Farmer Sgt. Ormett Wood fanned a rope network across the cargo, and soon we were up and off the mat-covered runway, skimming bomb-torn palm tops and out over a row of a dozen LST's that seemed to have spewed masses of gray-brown supplies on to the beach.

We headed north up the San Juanico straits and curved off across the low ridge that drops down into the rice-paddied American-occupied Leyte valley. Our chubbyparapatch radioman, headphones over his ears, peered out of the cabin door and shouted, "Capt. Turner, base air control says to tell you the fighters that were flying cover for us on this mission have been diverted to intercept some bogies."

"That's just dandy—okay, tell 'em to forget it," said Turner. "This isn't the first time we've gone in without help," and Joe went back to join his two ex-cowhands and farmer in fitting the tin drop slide into the open door.

"We usually make a free drop (no parachute) with food from about 100 feet," Joe explained to me. "If the pilots are good they'll almost stall the plane over the target and the stuff doesn't get badly broken. We figure anywhere from eighty-five to ninety-five per cent recovery on our drops, and we dropped as much as 500,000 pounds of ammo at Cape Gloucester, last Christmas time in six days."

They put the 'chutes on the ammo and the plan was to drop it from 150 to 300 feet with or without a stall over the target. Ours would be the first drop—but before we righted the plane and other planes would have made two trips each to leave the marooned G. I.'s with about 30,000 pounds of equipment with which to hang on.

Since we had no air cover—and with Jap planes known to be in the area—we hugged the tops of the palm trees, depending on our camouflage for protection. There's nothing fliers would rather shoot up than a clumsy transport. Capt. Turner got out his map to show me approximately where we were scheduled to make the drop. It was at the crest of a ridge in the middle of a quarter-mile hairpin turn along a narrow mountain road. The road switch backed several miles up from the beach.

"All we have to do is fly low enough to spot the difference between where the Japs leave off and our own boys begin," Joe noted. "They've been told to burn a purple flare on the ground at the spot where they want us to make the drop. Let's hope they got the message. I'd hate to give the Japs all this ammo even if it won't fit their guns. Once we spot the flare, the trick is to unload and get the hell out before the word is passed to Nip fighters that we are loafing around the area."

"We'll swing out over the bay the first time and come in counter-clockwise on the Jap side of the ridge," he outlined. "Then we should be almost level with the tip of the ridge and can see the guys who need the stuff. . . ."

"That was the plan, and Bob Milne flew it just that way. We approached at about 400 feet, weaved up the narrow gorge. As we neared the top of the ridge a bright purple flare, caught for a few seconds, burned as vividly as an acetylene welding torch—then smothered into a gray smoke shroud."

This was it. We were to make the drop in the middle of a bomb-singled, high-grass meadow. But we had committed ourselves. Before we dropped anything we still had to make the circle over Jap positions on the far side of the ridge and over the Ormoc valley. The narrow muddy road was perhaps 500 feet below us as the valley opened up. It was spotted with Jap vehicles. A number of Jap soldiers with sprigs of bamboo in their helmet nets gaped up at us. We had come over the ridge so quickly we had surprised them. Not a shot was fired at us. And we had nothing with which to fire at them. . . . In our transport there was only one firearm—a revolver belonging to Capt. Turner and it was lying useless on the stretcher against the wall of the ship.

I looked for Joe and the two cowboys and farmer to see whether they had noticed the Japs. They didn't have time. They were poised around the drop slide, awaiting the pilots' signal to "let 'er go!" (To be continued)

ALL IN THE GAME JACK TROY

Record Passing EN ROUTE TO MINOR LEAGUE CONVENTION AT BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Georgia Tech, making good on 11 consecutive pass plays and completing 28 out of 39 passes for the afternoon, directed an aerial attack at Georgia Saturday that few teams could have coped with. Tech made good on the first 11 pass plays, including laterals, and three passers figured in it. They were Red Broyles, George Mathews and Tex Ritter.

It didn't matter, really, who threw the ball, because Capt. Phil Tinsley, Tech's All-American end; Mathews or Charlie Murdock were going to get out there for the catch.

The more I think about Tech's passing, the more remarkable their record becomes. I remember that there was a lot of comment on the passing of Glenn Dobbs in the Sugar Bowl when Tennessee defeated Tulsa. Dobbs completed 11 straight in one series, but Tulsa ever had such a record as 28 completions in 39 attempts.

In other words, Tech missed only 11 passes all afternoon. A lot of glory for a great job of preparedness naturally is reflected on popular Bobby Dodd, who was outstanding in the role of pinch hitter for W. A. Alexander, the Grand Old Man of the East. Coach Alex, who had a substitute on hand and left for week, couldn't make the trip to Athens because it would have been too much of a strain. He turned the team over to Dodd with implicit faith in Dodd's ability to break the Sanford Field jinx.

Tech played a cool and calculating game. George Mathews was the most disturbing factor on the Tech side because, as he played wide, Georgia had to spread to cover him and try to stop Tech's running, too. Well, it couldn't be done.

Mathews is going to be All-American back if he has a chance to play another full season. He is the finest pass receiver our section has seen in many years. Every time I see him play, I think more and more of the skill of Don Hutson. Mathews is a backfield version of Hutson in pass receiving. Naturally he has a long way to go to be as good as Hutson, but he is on the way. The boy has a lot of natural ability.

Red Was Hurt Frank (The Red) Broyles played in the Georgia game with an injured hip. Broyles couldn't punt but he did everything else. He had his best day of the year running and passing.

Broyles is, of course, the backbone of the Tech team. He directed the Jackets very smartly against Georgia, made no mistakes in generalship.

Followers of the Jackets find that Broyles, as a player, grows on them. Somehow he reminds me of Paul Richards. Paul wasn't flashy. Paul made everything look so easy that he appeared to be lackadaisical. But he wasn't. He was a great catcher at all times. Broyles doesn't look like a great football player in action, but if you'll follow him game after game you'll soon discover that he has plenty on the football.

Coach Henry Franks, Tulsa, paid tribute to Broyles Saturday. Franks scouted Tech. Of Broyles, he said: "It's like having a coach on the field with Broyles directing the team."

Franks was greatly impressed with the Tech passing attack. It reminded him of his own Tulsa team with Dobbs doing the throwing.

Army Had Line What a lot of observers knew all along is now an established fact. Army also has a line. There was a lot of pro and con conversation about the Navy having such a tremendous line and how tough it was going to be for the Army to handle it. The answer was supplied at Baltimore on Saturday.

After watching Army plough under Notre Dame, 59 to 0, in Yankee Stadium, I had an idea that it was one of the most powerful teams I had ever seen. So I didn't hesitate to stick my neck out and take Army all the way over the Navy. I had seen Navy bumble and fumble against Georgia Tech.

So when Army unleashed the old power against Navy and won, 23 to 7, I was surprised, except that I secretly thought Army would win by a larger score.

Navy's Jenkins, a durable boy from Alabama, didn't last more than a couple of minutes. He wasn't in the best of shape to begin with and Army wasted no time adding to his woes.

Army rightfully is the national champion of football. It had been a long time since the Cadets finished ahead of their Midshipmen rivals, but there was no question about the superior team when Army made the grade.

A bowl team took a licking out in the southwest Saturday. S. M. U. upset T. C. U., 9 to 6. The Texas Christian lads met Texas in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. But wins and losses don't count for so much in wartime football. It's the kind of football the teams play that really counts.

Notre Dame staged the year's best comeback, rallying from the crushing loss to Army and knocking off their last three opponents. For the first time in history the Irish lost to both the Army and the Navy in the same season. They were the only losses.

David Harms Meet It is always interesting, and even amusing, to attend the annual meeting of the David Harms of the minor leagues of baseball. I wondered why they picked out Buffalo, but I should have known. Tommy Richardson, head of the Eastern League, is one of the committee. Anyway, a lot of us haven't seen Niagara Falls, and there is always a chance that a baseball man will come out of a poker game wearing a barrel. Going over Niagara in a barrel is an old pastime.

I intend to get out the long flannels sometime tomorrow and see the fall. All over New York state there is quite a bit of snow, and Niagara is reputed to be in a somewhat frozen state. Jerry Coleman would have to change his Atlanta line, to wit: Tough sledding; no snow.

Atlanta is in the market for half a dozen players. Manager, Hazen Cuyler will meet Earl Mann tomorrow and the extensive sessions relating to the acquisition of diamond talent will get under way in earnest. The Crackers need three-fourths of an infield, two outfielders and a couple of reliable pitchers.

If the Buffalo meeting is at all productive, the Crackers may begin the Southern League season as the pennant favorite.

Van Buren Stars As Eagles Win

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Ole Man Winter didn't even faze the Philadelphia Eagles today as a high-flying array of backs led by Rookies Steve Van Buren and Ernie Steele buried the winless Brooklyn Tigers 34-0, to remain in the thick of the free-for-all for the National Football League's eastern championship.

By winning, the Eagles climbed over the Washington Redskins into second place, a half game behind the pace-setting New York Giants. As 13,467 fans shivered through sub-freezing weather, the Eagles pushed across markers in every period, racking up two in the third.

Army Shatters Many Marks In Great Year

West Point Has
1st Unbeaten Team
In 28 Seasons

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Just how good is the U. S. Military Academy football team which looked up the national champion yesterday by beating Navy, 23 to 7?

Some experts are rating it as one of the best ever to represent the Army, while others point to the lack of opposition due to the war and say the rugged, rampaging Cadets appear great only because of that lack, and perhaps could not dominate the peacetime fields.

But it's certain the gray-garbed lads are the greatest scorers in West Point history. Their 23-point total against the talent-filled Navy team was the fourth highest in the 45-game rivalry with the Middies, and ran the Cadet nine-game total for the year to 504—an average of 56 per game.

No team came close to them, although Navy made a game of it through three thrill-packed periods yesterday before the Cadets surged away to two quick touchdowns early in the last session.

$55,000,000 IN BONDS

A crowd of 70,000 which bought more than $55,000,000 in war bonds was awed by the Army juggernaut, with Piebe Fullback Felix (Doc) Blanchard and Halfback Glenn Davis at the throttle, went over, around and through the Middle forward wall which had been tabbed as the best in the land. The conquest gave Army 23 victories, against 19 losses and three ties, in the long series with the Middies, clinched the national laurels and gave the Military Academy its first perfect season since 1916.

Along with the team crown, the Cadets wrapped up the national individual scoring laurels as Davis romped 50 yards for his 20th touchdown and 120th point in the final quarter, and Halfback Dick Waltherhouse's three point-after-touchdown conversions ran his total to 47 in 59 attempts, erasing the old national record of 44.

As expected, Navy proved the toughest foe on Army's slate, the Cadet total of 23 points on three touchdowns and a safety—being the lowest of the year for the victors. Army had only a dozen first downs to Navy's nine, but out-gained the Middies 210 to 87 yards on the ground, and intercepted five passes as Navy completed seven of 20 tries for 81 yards.

Hal Hamberg, Navy's brilliant passing-running 150-pounder, wound up his grid career gloriously although on the losing side. It was his fine work which paced Navy to victory in 1942 and 1943 over Army as the Middies ran up a five-year winning streak in the Academy classic.

WAS REAL STAR
The little fellow played about 45 minutes, carried the ball 15 times and completed seven of 15 passes. He was a tower on defense, too, and the game might have been a rout but for him. Bob Jenkins, his alternate and Navy's No. 1 ground-gainer, was hurt in the opening minutes and he was sidelined except for a brief flurry in the final period when he tossed a single pass which Army intercepted.

Nelson Trailing Ferrier In Meet

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—(UP)—Sgt. Jim Ferrier, the long ball hitter from the U. S. Army, shot another sub-par 70 today to retain his leadership in the $14,500 San Francisco Open Golf tournament.

The 70 gave Ferrier, the transplanted Australian, a 211 for the 54 holes of play—one stroke better than the 212 turned in by defending Champion Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio.

News Picks Widdoes As Coach of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Three Army, three Navy and two Ohio State players were named today on the Daily News All-American list with Carroll Widdoes, of Ohio State, selected as coach of the year.

The teams: Jack Dugger, Ohio State, and Paul Walker, Yale, selected as the best players; Don Whitmore, Navy, and John Ferraro, Southern California, tackles; Joe Stanowicz, Army, and Ben Chase, Navy, guards; Tex Warrington, Auburn, center; Les Horvath, Ohio State; Glenn Davis, Army; Bob Jenkins, Navy, and Felix "Doc" Blanchard, Army, backs.

THE GOING WAS ROUGH—Dinky Bowen (left), Georgia Tech's star running back, tells Claude Bond, Jacket trainer, he is okay and wants to see the rest of the game from his stretcher on the sidelines even if he can't play any more. The picture was taken right after Bowen suffered a knee injury in the Tech-Georgia game in Athens Saturday and was carried off the field by the roundabout Bond. It is thought Bowen's injury will heal in time for him to play against Tulsa in the Orange Bowl game.

Superbombers To Bring 9 Ex-Southern Stars Here

When the Second Air Force Superbombers, headed by Glenn Dobbs, clash with Charlie Trippi's Third Air Force Gremlins at Grant Field next Sunday afternoon in the AAF championship series, they will be playing their 14th game of the season and will be making their first southeastern appearance since they organized football in 1942.

Playing virtually a double schedule in one season, the hardy giants of the Rockies opened their long schedule on the first Saturday in September.

The Superbombers played before 150,000 spectators, including 90,000 soldiers. Largest of the crowds were 26,000 at Lincoln, Neb., for the Superbomber-Iowa Seahawk game and 25,000 at Norman, Okla., for the Superbombers-Norman Zoomers game.

SCORED 500 POINTS
The Superbombers rolled up a total of 500 points in their first 13 games to become the nation's highest-scoring team, a distinction wrested from them only Saturday when Army, which previously had 481 points, tallied 23 against Navy to jump its total to 504.

Winning ten games all the way from Spokane, Wash., to Sioux City, Ia., the Superbombers suffered two losses and a tie. They were noosed out by a touchdown by both the Iowa Seahawks and Norman Zoomers, and held to a scoreless deadlock by March Field.

Nine gridgers who did their college football playing in the south are members of the AAF's 31-man squad. Heading this list is the great Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa U.'s All-American from Frederick, Okla. Considered the greatest passer in football today, Dobbs starred in two All-Star games at Chicago, winning the most valuable player honors in 1944. His individual dual with Trippi here Sunday is expected to be the highlight of the game.

Another Oklahoman is Don Faulstich, 21-year-old ex-Sooner fullback in 1942. Returning to his home state will be big Ben Moye of Augusta, 225-pound 6-foot 1-inch tackle who played three years at Presbyterian College. One of the fastest linemen on the squad, Moye became the property of the pro Cleveland Rams of the National League before entering the service.

Two Virginia boys, both from Longview, are Don Fambrough, former sophomore quarterback at the University of Texas, and Jack Baldwin, 6 foot 4-inch, 225-pound Century center. Fambrough should be remembered by Georgia Tech fans for he helped the Longhorns defeat the Engineers in the 1943 Cotton Bowl game.

OLE MISS STAR

From Ole Miss comes Tackle Ray Wisozki, 6 foot 1-inch, 220-pound sophomore star on Coach Harry Mehre's 1941 varsity. One of the south's finest tacklers, he was 45 minutes of blistering action against Tulane that season when a greatly outweighted Mississippi team made off with a smashing 21-7 upset victory. Another Mississippi triumph that stands high in Wisozki's memory is the 18-0 conquest of Georgia and Frankie Sinkwich. Ray played basketball and also threw the javelin.

Nick Kluta, former Florida end, had his greatest thrill on the gridiron the day the Gators beat Georgia Tech. Kluta started out as a sophomore tackle, but Coach Tom Lieb switched him to end and he's played a wing ever since.

From Alabama comes Don Avery, 245-pound former Crimson Tide freshman tackle, and from West Virginia is Ed Ulinaki, ex-Marshall quarterback and captain. Tickets for Sunday's Superbomber-Gremlin game are on sale at Muse's and Georgia Tech Athletic Association.

J. B. Woolfolk Cards Ace at Bobby Jones

J. B. Woolfolk had something to brag about after his round of golf with J. R. Strand, C. F. Brown and C. J. Cobb yesterday afternoon at the Bobby Jones course. You guessed it. He scored a hole-in-one on the 140-yard No. 8 hole. Woolfolk used a five iron to play the shot.

SUPER BOMBERS, RANDOLPH CARDED

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A "Treasury Bond Bowl" football game pitting the mighty unbeaten and untied Randolph Field Ramblers of Texas against the Second Air Force Superbombers, of Colorado Springs, Colo., at the Polo Grounds on December 16 was announced today.

In making the announcement the Sixth War Loan sports committee said admission will be through the purchase of war bonds, plus payment of $2 for Army relief purposes. The anticipated crowd of 50,000 is expected to contribute almost $80,000,000 in bond sales.

Plunging over the three-yard line to put the finishing flourish on a sustained downfield march, Paschal, the team's top ground gainer, went over the goal line through a great gap in the center of the Redskins line.

The Giants, who have put on a stretch drive to overtake the early season leaders, the Philadelphia Eagles, still must defeat the Redskins at Washington next Sunday to clinch the title unless the Quaker eleven drops its finale to the in-and-out Cleveland Rams.

In winning today, they were put strictly on their mettle and came through brilliantly after Washington went ahead 13-10 with a 17-yard field goal by Joe Aguirre in the third period.

Sammy Baugh put on his best passing display of the season in an effort to keep the Redskins in the running and the Giants needed all the breaks of the game to win. It was anybody's ball game right up to the final whistle and only a holding penalty kept Washington from a tie.

With only two minutes left to play, Joe Aguirre kicked a field goal from the New York 38-yard line but the play was called back and the Redskins penalized 15 yards for holding. He then tried for a field goal from the Washington 48 but the ball just failed by inches to go over the cross bar.

HAMILTON SHOOT 50 POINTS HERE

Ralph Hamilton, former Indiana University star and now a member of the state champion A. S. F. Officers' quintet, demonstrated again that he is probably the greatest shot in basketball when he scored 50 points against the crack First Student Training Regiment of Fort Benning yesterday at Sports Arena.

Hamilton's team decided Benning, 67 to 62, but the score was secondary to the great exhibition put on by the young lieutenant from Conley. Ralph hails from Fort Wayne, Ind. He has been playing basketball ever since he can remember. In fact, his first toy was a basketball. Atlanta fans who haven't seen the "Hoosier Hot Shot" in action really have a treat in store for them.

Some of the best guards in this section have tried to stop him, but generally foul out in the attempt. If the defense holds Hamilton to 25 points they feel they have done a good job.

FILLY RULES THE TURF

Twilight Tear Named 'Horse of the Year'

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Warren Wright's three-year-old filly, Twilight Tear, today was voted the "horse of the year" in the annual poll of 28 experts of triangle publications, publishers of the Daily Racing Form and associated newspapers.

Gremlins Fall Before Hefty Ft. Pierce, 7-6

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Big Bill Daley proved to be a real All-American at Phillips Field today, pacing the giant Fort Pierce Navy Amphibis football team to a 7-to-6 victory over the Third Air Force Gremlins before an estimated 11,000 shivering fans. The Gremlins play Second Air Force in Atlanta next Sunday.

His brilliant 61-yard touchdown run in the final 30 seconds of the first half, followed by Les Bruckner's perfect placement for the extra point gave the Amphibis their margin of victory, and a perfect record of eight wins this season.

But despite fine individual performance, which far overshadowed the efforts of Charlie Trippi, ace of the Gremlins' ball-carrying brigade, the former Minnesota and Michigan All-American almost threw the ball game away in the final six minutes when he fumbled on the sixty-yard stripe and set the stage for the Gremlins' touchdown, a bullet pass from Trippi to Ted Cook. Guard Bob Ivory was the alert Grem who fell on the ball.

Unfortunately for the Grems, their placekick expert, John Seltenreich, was unable to overcome the twin handicaps of a rushing Fort Pierce line, and a brisk northeast wind, and his try for the tying point was far wide of the mark.

In the final analysis it was the bruising Navy line that won the ball game, and except for their one scoring opportunity the Gremlins never had a chance. They negotiated exactly 58 yards through the Amphib line, and made 36 yards through the air, by far their poorest performance of the season.

Bainbridge Unbeaten

BAINBRIDGE, Md., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The never-beaten Bainbridge football team completed its second straight perfect season today with two fourth period touchdowns which submerged the resolute Maxwell Field Marauders, 13-3, in the league.

Triumphant in 14 of 17 starts and winner of $202,165 in two years of racing, the "Tear," trained by Ben Jones, received 26 of the 28 votes. The other two were cast for the undefeated two-year-olds, Walter M. Jeffords' Pavot and John Marsch's Free for All.

In winning nine stakes during the season and earning $167,555 the queen of the turf lost only to Mettesome and Adulter in her first start of the year at Hialeah, to Vienna in the Alabama stakes at Belmont and to Dare Me in the Maryland handicap at Laurel. In her last start she romped off with the Fimlico special by six lengths over Devil Diver.

In becoming the first filly in turf history to receive the "Horse of the Year" honors, Twilight Tear also was an unanimous choice as the best three-year-old, best three-year-old filly and best handicap filly or mare.

Other champions: Best two-year-old and best two-year-old colt, Pavot; best two-year-old filly, Busher; best three-year-old colt, By Jimmy; best handicap horse, Devil Diver; best steeplechaser, Rouge Dragon.

Detroit Bumps Boston, 38-7

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions, scoring freely in the first three periods, whipped the Boston Yanks, 38 to 7, here today in the season's final National League football game at Detroit. The Lions' fifth straight win assured them of at least a tie for second in final western division standings.

Halfback Elmer Heckney scored three of Detroit's five touchdowns, two on four-yard plunges and the other on an eight-yard pass from "Bullet" Bob Westfall, who pitched two other touchdowns serials.

"Flatfoot" Frank Sinkwich, wearing a guard to protect a broken checkbone received in last week's game at Cleveland, served the Lions in a kicking role only, booting a first period field goal from the 23-yard line and adding all five points after touchdown. The eight points gave him a season total of 66 in his second year in the league.

Jap Drive May Aim At Chungking

Ledo-Burma Road Apparently Already Partly Neutralized

KUNMING, China, Dec. 3.—(AP) The Japanese offensive in south-eastern China already has exploited certain weaknesses in the American-Chinese partnership and is testing the basic strategy of American help for China.

It is quite possible that the enemy, aiming at least for Kweichow, will also strike for Kunming and Chungking and will attempt to offset the prospective opening of the Ledo-Burma road from India. The Americans may be forced to take extraordinary measures to save a tremendous military investment here.

CHUNGKING, Dec. 3.—(UP) The Chungking government today faced its gravest military and political threat of the eight-year war with Japan as enemy forces drove to Tushan, 80 air miles from the strategic center of Kweichow, and well-informed sources said that the next 60 days might determine whether China will be knocked out of the war.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has been trading space for time, but he is running out of space now, and unless the Chinese armies hold Kweichow until the Burma Road can be reopened China may be totally defeated and thus forfeit her place as one of the "big five" world powers who will make up the security council of the postwar world organization.

The Japanese already have partially neutralized the value of the Ledo-Burma road by their offensive against Chinese forces in the southeast, who were ultimately to be equipped with tonnage sent in over that supply link.

It is probable that the equipment and training expended on preparing the Chinese expeditionary force for the Burma road of offensive would have saved south-eastern China.

Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn, commanding the American force that trained and helped supply the Chinese expeditionary force, said in a recent interview that he hoped the Ledo-Burma road would be open by Christmas.

It is questionable, however, whether even a military junction along that route between the Chinese and the Allied forces working in from India will be effected by that time, and no one can say for sure when the first truck convoys will roll into China.

The Americans are preparing to go all-out, however, to make the highway work, and experts in logistics already are at the task of figuring how many thousands of Chinese soldiers can be equipped and supplied by this route. This data is a prerequisite to plans for a Chinese training program.

Apparently the fundamental error in estimating the Chinese military situation was in making the road the first order of business. It now has become obvious that the American airbases in southeastern China were never secure, and the American program never got around to preparing the Chinese to protect them.

As a result the Japanese are now consolidating a virtual land link between Manchuria and Indo-China, and the U. S. 14th Air Force has lost its bases for its highly successful sweeps against Japanese shipping as well as for potential support of an American landing on the China coast.

Americans Ordered From China Provinces

CHUNGKING, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Japanese troops have attacked Chinese positions seven miles west of Tushan, 75 miles southeast of Kweichow, in their deepest penetration of Kweichow province, the Chinese high command acknowledged tonight.

Tushan, formerly the terminus of the Kweichow-Kweichow railroad, is 35 miles inside Kweichow province, and is an important point on the rail line which now runs to Tuyen, about 35 miles north. The enemy's last reported position was about 100 miles from Kweichow.

GREETINGS TO GEN. CHENNAULT—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commanding the U. S. Army's 14th Air Force in China, holds Tayng Wong (left) and Toong Di after they had presented him with Christmas greetings from China's grade school children. Both are four years old, and just a little bit shy in the presence of rank.

tion was about 100 miles from Kweichow.

The U. S. embassy here has advised American nationals in eastern Yunnan and northern and western Kweichow provinces to evacuate. Previously Americans and British in the danger zones in Kweichow and Hunan provinces had been ordered out. Yunnan is China's southwesternmost province. The embassy said about 100 Americans, mostly missionaries, were affected by the orders.

1,000 Miles an Hour Seen by Air Marshal

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Air Marshal William A. Bishop, of Canada, predicted today speeds in the air of more than 1,000 miles an hour within the next five to 10 years.

"Everything is obsolete compared to what is coming in the way of jet propulsion and rocket planes and possibly a combination of both," he told reporters as he boarded a plane at LaGuardia field for Montreal.

Russian Poles Win Edge in Regime Row

Pravda Attacks Premier Arciszewski As Soviet Enemy

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Reorganization of the Polish Committee of National Liberation into the provisional government of the Polish republic loomed today as Pravda attacked Tomasz Arciszewski, new premier of the Polish government in London, as "one of the worst enemies of the U. S. S. R." Arciszewski "for many years was connected with the Pilsudski clique," the newspaper declared. It also attacked the London government's foreign and war ministers as "extreme Nationalists, Anti-Semites and Fascists."

The news agency Tass reported that a movement favoring formation of a provisional government in Lublin by the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation was "spreading throughout liberated areas."

Proclamation of a provisional government appeared likely before the end of the month.

De Gaulle in Moscow To Clarify 'Friendship'

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Gen. De Gaulle told Moscow's French colony at an embassy reception today that he came to Moscow "to tighten and clarify French-Soviet friendship, not only for a victorious war but also in order to work together for a lasting peace."

Frenchmen of all ages and occupations gathered to meet the head of the French government here for discussions with Premier Stalin, at the embassy.

De Gaulle, smiling, bowing and shaking hands, gave each guest an individual greeting. In an impromptu address, he said he was especially happy to know the French citizens here "when we see the dawn of victory now."

His second meeting with the Soviet premier occurred at a long luncheon today, after which, accompanied by Foreign Commissar Molotov, he attended a special performance by Russia's leading singers and dancers at the Bolshoi theater.

76 Per Cent Repaid U. S. On Surplus Goods

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Four government agencies disposed of $28,772,000 of surplus war property during October at 64.7 per cent of its cost or appraised value.

W. L. Clayton, surplus war property administrator, said the October disposals brought the total for the five months since June 1 to $111,779,000 at 76.1 per cent of cost or appraised value.

BRITT IS FIRST 'TRIPLE THREAT'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Capt. Maurice L. ("Footsie") Britt now has the Distinguished Service Cross to go with the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Silver Star.

The War Department, announcing the latest award today, said Britt is believed to be the first soldier in this war to win all three awards. Britt, who made football fame at the University of Arkansas and later as a pro with the Detroit Lions, is a resident of Lonoke, Arkansas.

The infantry officer is on terminal leave, preparing to retire from the Army. He lost his right arm and suffered other wounds in the Italian campaign.

GREECE

ers of the extreme left as preparing the way to civil war, which would be a mortal misfortune for our country."

DECLARATION OF POLICY

(Papandreou said his proclamation disbanding the Communist EAM militia and other guerrilla organizations was in accordance with a "declaration of policy" to which all factions had agreed unconditionally.)

(Then, he continued, the Leftists demanded jacking up of armed units which constitute the nation's original army.)

"We answered that these units constitute the original army, that the war is still going on and that these units are the only military formations with which Greece can share in the common Allied struggle until our regular army is organized. Above all, we declared that this opinion is shared by the British government and the Allied command."

STREETS PATROLLED

British Sherman tanks, scout cars and armored cars patrolled the streets of the Greek capital, and RAF and Hellenic Air Force and U. S. transport planes circled over the city this afternoon. Large crowds assembled outside the U. S. embassy.

Papandreou forbade a scheduled EAM Communist demonstration today, but the EAM's central committee nevertheless called one for 11 a. m., and ordered a general strike on Monday.

By 10 a. m., gray-clad civil police surrounded the approaches to Constitution Square while four British armored cars waited in the square.

SHOOTING BEGINS

The shooting began when, breaking through the cordon at a few places, the crowd surged forward on the government palace before the tomb of the Unknown Warrior with their banners unfurled. Alongside the Communist flag and blue and white Greek ensign carried by the demonstrators raved the Stars and Stripes and Union Jack.

The policemen hesitated before pulling back the bolts of their guns, and then agitatedly began to fire over the heads of the demonstrators, women and children among them.

The people flopped down like cards. I saw some hit by stray shots. Onlookers scattered to the shelter of doorways.

British armored car troops still did nothing. They did not fire a single shot so far as I could see.

DEMONSTRATORS RISE

One of two braver demonstrators rose from the prostrate mass of people, but were shot down. I saw one man raise a Greek flag high over his head, then fall.

After five minutes of steady fusillade, the police ceased fire. Most of the first wave of demonstrators took advantage of the pause in the shooting to run, leaving several wounded and dead persons lying in the road among tattered banners.

SHOUT 'DEMOCRACY'

After ambulances picked up the fallen, and policemen took cover behind lamp posts and pillars with guns at the ready, the angered crowds massed once more, shouting "democracy."

They surged forward again. The police again opened fire, with less shooting this time. The demonstrators broke through in a straggling crowd.

The crisis took shape rapidly when all six of the left wing cabinet ministers resigned yesterday, protesting the demobilization order and announcements that Lt. Gen. Ronald Mackenzie Scobie, British commander of Allied troops in Greece, would stand beside the present constitutional government of Papandreou until it had formed a home guard and was able to hold free elections.

(In London, Prime Minister Churchill announced Saturday night that Britain was giving her full support to the Papandreou government.)

An empty house is more expensive than a Want Ad in The Constitution that will rent it.

WILL C. STOKES Dies Unexpectedly

Will C. Stokes, Former Solon, Dies in Twiggs

Will C. Stokes, of 522 Peachtree avenue, N. E., member of the realty firm of D. L. Stokes & Company, Inc., former representative from Twiggs county in the general assembly and widely known in political circles, died unexpectedly early yesterday at the home of his brother, F. Y. Stokes, in Jeffersonville after attending the Georgia Tech game in Athens.

Born in Twiggs county, he was educated in the public schools, Mercer University and University of Valparaiso, in Indiana.

As a young man he entered the teaching profession and taught in Twiggs county schools, points in north Georgia, Perry, Fla., and was superintendent of Summerlin Institute in Bartow, Fla. He gave up teaching in 1914 and entered politics, serving for 12 years as clerk of Twiggs county superior court. Later he was elected to the legislature from his home county.

He was interested in agriculture and was responsible for organization of the Second Federal Farm and Loan Association in this state in 1916. With two others, he started the program of diversified farming in Georgia which has become nationalized. He was at one time an executive in the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the southeastern district.

Survivors include a brother, D. L. Stokes, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Mrs. E. B. Riley, of Macon; Miss Elva Jeanne Stokes and Mrs. S. F. Mayer, both of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today in Prospect Methodist church, near Jeffersonville.

Air-Land Push Shoves Nazis Back

ROME, Dec. 3.—(AP)—British Eighth Army troops advancing through the Po valley on a broad front northeast of Faenza have driven to within two miles of Russi, junction city astride the main Ravenna-Faenza highway, the Allied high command announced today.

Supported by more than 2,500 planes of all types and strong tank formations the British drive started yesterday and the Germans were forced back toward Russi between Alberto and the Montone river. The retreat cost the Germans their last footholds on the west bank of the Montone. The Allied communiqué said the Germans were trying to establish a line along the Secolo via Culpa canal just south of Russi.

Wife Agrees To Rear Hubby's 'Mistake' Child

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(UP)—Mrs. Raymond Fasy, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Rose Whitehouse, 44, whose husband, Pfc. Carl Fasy, 29, returned from Newfoundland with a 10-month-old daughter borne him by a nurse there, said today that the soldier's wife had agreed to rear the child.

Mrs. Fasy, wife of Mrs. Whitehouse's son by a previous marriage, quoted her mother-in-law as saying she had forgiven her husband for his "mistake" and admired him for taking the child, Geraldine, when told it was his. Whitehouse said on his arrival that Geraldine's mother did not want her and that as far as he was concerned "she's dead."

Byrd, on War Front, Appeals for Production

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd, explorer who staked America's claim in the Antarctic, broke a long self-imposed public silence today to pay tribute to the Army's GI Joes and to urge on their behalf full production support by the folks back home for a war "a helluva way from finished."

His appeal answered the speculation, "Where's Byrd; back at the South Pole?" for he turned up, instead, on the European battlefield where he is making a study of how the tactical air forces support the fighting ground troops. This may be helpful in the Pacific theater where the admiral twice has been on aviation duty.

Scout Meeting

VIENNA, Ga., Dec. 3.—The Rev. Judson Jackson will be guest speaker Monday evening at a joint meeting of the Dooly and Crisp county Boy Scouts. A supper will be served at the community house in Cordelle preceding the meeting.

Millions have used—PAZO for PILES. Relieves pain and soreness.

There's good reason why PAZO ointment has been used by so many millions of sufferers from simple Piles. First, PAZO ointment soothes inflamed areas—relieves pain and itching. Second, PAZO ointment lubricates hardened, dried parts—helps prevent cracking and soreness. Third, PAZO ointment tends to reduce swelling and check bleeding. Fourth, it's easy to use. PAZO ointment's perforated Pile Pipe makes application simple, thorough. Your doctor can tell you about PAZO ointment.

Committee Organizes

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—A recently appointed committee of a "better town and homes committee" from the local Kiwanis Club is duly organized and will work in co-operation with the citizens of the town, including council and civic clubs. The plans call for many improvements and additional enterprises for the town.

Patton Decorates Atlanta Colonel

Col. Helmuth E. Beine, supply officer of Gen. Patton's Third Army, has been decorated with the Bronze Star for meritorious service, according to a notice from the War Department received by his wife, who resides at the Georgian terrace.

The notice said the decoration was bestowed by Gen. Patton for Col. Beine's brilliant performance during the Normandy campaign. Helmuth has been in the Army for 27 years. For services in the first World War, he was awarded the Silver Star, the Croix de Guerre and the Purple Heart. In the early twenties, he was stationed at Fort McPherson.

War Fund Overpaid In Floyd County

ROME, Ga., Dec. 3.—William E. Wimberly, general chairman of the Floyd County War Community Fund drive, announced today "with all subscriptions in a few belated pledges paid, the total should run between $52,000 and $53,000. The quota was $50,000."

In expressing his appreciation to all those who helped make the drive a success Wimberly pointed out that Floyd county citizens have responded to every call made upon them and that this magnificent record has been maintained in the present drive.

Glimpses of HOLLYWOOD

Lauren Bacall Misses Broadway

By INGRA ARVAD.
HOLLYWOOD.—Lauren Bacall will leave for New York the moment she finishes "The Big Sleep" opposite Humphrey Bogart. She says that she wants to get back. She loves Hollywood, but after being out here for a year, she has missed Broadway and wants a chance, between pictures, to be there for a while. Incidentally, her latest picture, "To Have and Have Not," is proving to be a countrywide hit.

When Frances Rafferty and her husband, Maj. John Horton, build their Hollywood home after the war, it will be furnished with knick-knacks and furnishings from Italy. The major, now there, has written Frances he's buying all kinds of odd pieces and is shipping them back to her.

Service men are not the only ones to hang titles on our glamor gals. The stage crew of "Without Love" has unanimously chosen Katharine Hepburn as their "First Choice for a Companion on a Desert Island." Reason? She's such a good cook! Every afternoon at four o'clock the set has tea, cakes and sandwiches, and Miss Hepburn's cake is the best they've ever eaten, they say.

Bette Davis is once again herself. After "Mr. Skeffington" and "The Corn Is Green," in both of which she wore character clothes, her own hair, her own beauty and a glamorous wardrobe in "Stolen Life," Cary-Kelly will design and supervise the making of her clothes.

It seems very likely that the first picture Clark Gable is going to do will be produced by Sam Zimbalist. It is the story wherein Clark will play a man in the Merchant Marine who meets and falls in love with a librarian in San Francisco. Right now, the script is titled, "Clark Gable in 'Every Port.'" It is hoped that the change to "The Girls Thereof," a Gable in every port would be a dream reversal of the sea-going saw, "A Girl in Every Port."

The Green Years, a difficult to cast, and the producer, in this case also Sam Zimbalist—said jokingly the other day, "Maybe if we take long enough writing the script, Jackie Jenkins will take the part." Jackie is now about six and the script calls for a boy of about 16 or 18.

"Laura" is the best detective picture to be released in years. Gene Tierney never played as well nor looked as pretty, and Dana Andrews has his best part up to date. Clifton Webb, the Broadway actor, is refreshingly different and a great asset to movies. Hollywood should hold onto him this time.

"Laura" was a picture which had tough going. Rouben Mamoulian directed it the first two weeks, but Darryl Zanuck didn't like the material, so Producer Otto Preminger took over and turned out a sensational salvage job which is grossing far more than Zanuck ever hoped it would. Talked to Alexis Smith, who was reminiscing about her wedding four months ago. At the time, she was so excited about the impending ceremony, she couldn't eat for a week before hand, and, "on the morning of the big day," she said, "I went down stairs at about 9:30 in the morning and mother hardly noticed me because she was so busy preparing for the reception. I felt absolutely sick and went back to bed and about 11:30 mother came up and said: 'You've got to get up; it's your wedding day.' I shook my head and said, 'I don't want to get married.' 'I'm sick.' But around two o'clock I felt better and we had the most beautiful wedding you could imagine."

Alexis is starring opposite Errol Flynn in "San Antonio."

"Heaven Can Wait," the Ernst Lubitsch picture which was such a success in America, has been filmed with dubbed-in French for overseas showing. The only star in the cast who was able to speak her own lines was Gene Tierney, who is a very accomplished linguist.

If Danielle Darrieux arrives in Hollywood—as many people are expecting after her clean bill of health from the French government—she'll find Universal waiting for her at the station. If you remember, she upped and left Hollywood after signing a three-picture contract with that studio and made only one. It didn't help her career any.

The Worry CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

New Policy Of Dr. Crane

(Attention: All readers of this educational column! Please take note of the changed policy being instituted immediately with reference to your personal letters about a private psychological problems. You will still receive personal counsel from me, but not through individually dictated and signed letters.)

CASE E-228: Glenn Perrins, aged about 38, is a newspaper editor.

"How do you handle all the mail that comes to you from around the U. S. A.?" he inquired when I visited him at his office.

On the average, I receive letters from 5 per cent of the newspaper's total circulation each year. The figures may go up to 7 per cent or even 10 per cent occasionally, but 5 per cent is about the usual figure.

This means that from a newspaper of 100,000 circulation, I receive 5,000 letters from its readers each year.

This personal consultation service by letter is much like an extension university service, offered by the newspaper, to handle the same type of psychological problems that I encountered in my university studies.

Fortunately for me, about 90 per cent of your letters request my psychological advice on a personal basis, or else express a desire for some of my psycho-physiological bulletins.

The other 10 per cent, however, consist of personal problems. For the past decade, I have answered these by use of the dictaphone and a staff of good stenographers.

During 1944, for example, I spent more than six months just sitting at the dictaphone, composing individual answers to your letters. And I personally signed every one of them. I even had to quit college teaching to handle your mail.

LARGE MAIL INPUT
The number of newspapers using my psycho-physiological bulletins is increasing, however, and the mail input is now so large that I am forced to make a change.

Hereafter, you can continue to write to me, as before, concerning personal psychological problems. I shall read your letters and then send you a printed bulletin that deals with your problem, or else write a new bulletin that will.

But henceforth it will be impossible for me to devote time to a personally dictated reply to all of you. This new plan goes into effect at once.

Besides, most of your problems are almost exactly like those of hundreds of others who write to me each week. So I feel I can far more good via the newspaper, if I devote half of those six months I formerly spent dictating personal answers to letters, to writing new bulletins or constructing new psychological charts for you readers.

Mrs. Crane has long been urging me to write some additional psychological bulletins, such as one on the "Logical Proof of God."

Clergymen and educators have also been making requests for many other treatises on subjects briefly mentioned in this column but needing further elaboration for widespread use by the churches and schools.

I shall thus continue to read your letters, but shall not give you a personally dictated reply. Meanwhile, I shall devote those three months I can thereby salvage to constructing other bulletins or rating scales which you can then obtain via this newspaper.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope, and a 3c stamp for typing or printing costs, or when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Don't Follow Movie Stars; Some Too Thin

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

The movie producer aims to please the public, or rather, to kill the star. He wants her thin enough to photograph beautifully streamlined—even if she has her belly just as she looks like the perfect figure with all right.

To be truthful, when you see them in person, some of them are appallingly thin. And what's more, they do not have as good figures as they seem to have on the screen. The average little girl reads about some glamorous star, five feet six, who weighs 112 pounds and thinks she ought to weigh that little. For one thing, the two girls work on entirely different schedules. Between pictures, the star has time to recoup her energies. She can hide in the desert and soak up sun and rest. The average girl has to plug right along, from nine to five, day in and day out. If she tries to keep thin as her movie favorite, she may have to take a forced rest.

If girls, in the movies or out, would keep their weight up to their normal minimum, which is 100 pounds for the first five feet of height and five pounds for each extra inch, and exercise to keep streamlined measurements they wouldn't have to worry about their health or their figures. That minimum weight is for the girl with the slight frame. The girl with the average frame should allow 105 pounds for five feet, the girl with stocky frame 110 pounds for five feet, and she is entitled to five pounds extra for each extra inch of height.

A girl who meets the weight standard should be able to have lovely measurements, with the help of exercise. The movie star's waistline must be slim. It can with exercise, be nine inches smaller than the bust measurement.

Position: Sit on the floor, legs stretched wide apart, knees straight, arms outstretched overhead without hunching your shoulders but pulled slim through midriff.

Movement: Hold the stretch, twist sharply sideward, bend over and touch toes. Straighten up, pull slim through the middle and touch over toes. Continue, alternating sides, for 12 counts. Later increase. This exercise is so strenuous for anyone with any back trouble.

This is the kind of exercise that keeps the hips down to specifications—one to two inches larger than the bust. The movie star's position: Lying on side on floor, one hand braced in front, legs stretched down.

Movement: Swing top leg up in front and away up and out in back, swing 12 counts, change sides and repeat.

Write for the "Business Girl's Daily Half Dozen" and keep up the good work. Enclose large stamped return envelope, with three cents in coin or stamps to cover cost of handling.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

SUPPRESSION OF SWEAT
Daughter uses (preparation that deodorizes and suppresses sweat) which stops underarm sweating entirely. Since she doesn't sweat much on other surfaces I wonder if it is injurious to her health.

(Mrs. V. H. C.)
Answer—It is harmless.

HI SKINNY!
I am 22, weigh only 93 pounds and can't seem to put on any weight, and I have acne. Doctor looked at my teeth, found I have no wisdom teeth, said if the dentist could find the buried wisdom teeth and take them out I'd gain weight and get rid of my acne. (Miss T. E. J.)

Answer—Sounds far-fetched. But first get the opinion and advice of the dentist or rather the advice of the doctor and dentist offer after they have consulted together. Meanwhile send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for pamphlet, "How To Gain Weight." Enclose 10 cents if you would like also a pamphlet on "Acne—Blackheads and Pimples."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—New beginnings made today should be surprisingly successful. An excellent day for obtaining new plans for business, for decisions in general.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—The things you least expect to happen of a disquieting nature are likely to occur before 1:30 p. m. and because of such you may be forced to make a change in plans. However, do not make the changes of your own volition.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 11:30 a. m. favors financial transactions, industrial and manufacturing business affairs, legal and educational matters. After 11:30 a. m. favors deals in land or with older people, affairs of art and adornment.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—The period from 11:30 a. m. to 10 p. m. is favorable for dealing with others in a friendly and open-hearted way in practically all lines of endeavor. There are days when it is better to be in connection with other people and in quiet matters of all kinds. In July 23-August 22 (LEO)—After 9:30 a. m. and continuing throughout the day and evening is a favorable period for anything that had charm, music, beauty, poetry and an ambition along these lines may be secured in some surprising way.

August 23-September 22 (VIRGO)—You will have a desire to enlarge upon things and if you go shopping, or negotiating for various items, you are apt to have desire to buy more than you need. You are likely to reason that you have a favorable period for work, requiring greater obligations.

September 23-October 22 (LIBRA)—

Previous to 6:45 p. m. use caution in travel, and subdue any tendency you may feel to act too quickly, or speak too abruptly. The remainder of the day and until 11:45 p. m. favors finishing old matters, educational ideas, dealing related to land.

October 23-November 21 (SCORPIO)—During the day and until 7:45 p. m. influences abound that often bring elaborate schemes that may prove to be too elaborate in their expense. Use in making contracts, communications nature. The period favors securing the aid of important friends. After 4:30 p. m. is especially favorable for your health.

November 22-December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 4:30 p. m. favors meetings, conferences, plans and projects, both of a social and business nature. The period favors securing the aid of important friends. After 4:30 p. m. is especially favorable for your health.

December 22-January 19 (CAPRICORN)—There are days when it is better to wait, or concentrate on affairs already started, for new beginnings either wear into nothingness or run into obstacles. January 20-February 18 (AQUARIUS)—The day does not appear to be favorable for indulging in financial extravagance. An excellent day to stick to routine matters. The best aspects of the day operate between 11:10 a. m. and 2:20 p. m.

February 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Some adjustments may have to be made before 12:04 noon, for it will be easy to go to extremes of action. If calmness and peace are maintained, this will be a favorable period for work, requiring quickness of action, otherwise antagonisms may abound.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—New beginnings made today should be surprisingly successful. An excellent day for obtaining new plans for business, for decisions in general.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—The things you least expect to happen of a disquieting nature are likely to occur before 1:30 p. m. and because of such you may be forced to make a change in plans. However, do not make the changes of your own volition.

Roosevelt, Actress Marry On Rim of Grand Canyon

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Col. Elliott Roosevelt and Movie Actress Faye Emerson were married in a glass-enclosed observation station on the rim of the Grand Canyon today in what the bride called "probably the most beautiful wedding there ever was."

The President's 34-year-old second son and the 27-year-old coppery blond graduate of Little Theatre school in New York City, the couple were married at 9 a. m. before a large window overlooking the magnificent chasm. Blankets of snow and swirling mist partly concealed its famed hues. The temperature outside was 29 degrees.

"Our marriage means so much to us both that we wanted to begin it as beautifully as possible," the bride told reporters.

The Rev. Roger Sawyer, pastor of a Williams, Ariz., Methodist church, performed the ceremony as a few friends stood by.

Miss Emerson was attended by Mrs. Joseph B. Livingston, of Los Angeles, granddaughter of the late opera star, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink.

Maid of honor was 10-year-old Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, daughter of Col. Roosevelt by the second of his two previous marriages.

Best man was Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. Miss Emerson was given in marriage by John Meyer, a mutual friend who introduced the couple at a dinner party in his Los Angeles home in 1943.

Miss Emerson wore a blue doo-skin suit, a mink bandeau with matching coat and muff, and brown alligator shoes. She carried a cluster of white orchids.

From the Yavapai observation station the wedding party proceeded to El Tovar hotel, a rustic and scenic honeymooners' retreat a mile away. A wedding breakfast included champagne and creamed chicken on sliced avocado, topped off by wedding cake.

The newlyweds said they would honeymoon for about a week in the Grand Canyon region.

Soviet Troops Strafed By U. S. Fliers

Month-Old Attack In Yugoslavia Blamed
On Navigation

ROME, Dec. 3.—(AP)—American fighter planes swooping over Yugoslavia attacked a Russian column by mistake, headquarters of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force disclosed today.

Results of this attack last Nov. 7 on an ally were not revealed. An official headquarters statement declared the attack was due to an error in target identification through faulty navigation, and said that apologies had been sent to Moscow and the commander of the Russian forces involved.

An official statement said: "Mediterranean Allied Air Force headquarters report that on Nov. 7 a squadron of fighters from the U. S. 15th Air Force, engaged in a strafing mission in Yugoslavia, attacked by mistake a Russian column."

"The error was entirely due to a mistake in target identification through faulty navigation."

"The incident was promptly reported by the squadron when development of gun camera film verified the error."

"The U. S. joint chiefs of staff from Washington expressed their deep regret to Moscow, and General Wilson, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean, sent a similar message to the Russian commander of the forces involved."

Nazis Losing Desire To Die for Fatherland

ROME, Dec. 3.—(AP)—An indication that some Germans are losing their desire to die for the Fatherland was given today in a "Reichsfuehrer bulletin" issued to officers only of the 16th SS Panzer Grenadier Division in Italy.

"We must not lie to ourselves and say there are hopeless positions which justify our surrendering," the captured document said. "The German soldier does not surrender. Unfortunately in many cases it has been shown we are not prepared to face this truth. Some of us begin to lie as the Italians did."

From a Wine Cookbook

When you've splurged on a wartime roast, you expect good eating. Here's a way to make it even tastier than you hoped!

Wine-Basted Roast Beef

When the roast is in the pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Do not cover pan—sear in very hot oven (500° F.) 15 minutes, then cut heat to 350° F. As roasting continues, baste frequently with fat from pan and 2 spoonfuls of Burgundy or Claret wine, using 1 cup wine altogether. Roast 30 minutes per lb. for rare roast beef, 40 minutes per lb. for well done. (Include searing in total time allowed.) Make brown gravy in pan, using 1 part wine, 3 parts water for liquid.

Serve the same wine with your roast

There's a natural taste harmony between a glass of wine and food. Red table wines, like Burgundy and Claret, seem to go best with hearty red meats. Your dealer is featuring excellent California red table wines. Try them!

Wine is few talks about different kinds of wine and how you can serve and enjoy them. How to Cook with Wine introduces new adventures in good eating. Get them at dealers—or write Wine Advisory Board, 85 Second St., San Francisco 5, California

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed. You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe, mixed in your own kitchen. It gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money, and you'll find it wonderful for real relief. Make a syrup by stirring 3 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. (You can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2½ ounces of Finex (obtained from any drugist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it. This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Finex is a special compound of pre-selected ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

WHY BE FAT?

Get slimmer without exercise

You may lose pounds and have a more slender, graceful figure. No exercising. No dieting. No drugs. With the AYDS plan you don't cut out any meals, starches, potatoes, meats or butter, you simply cut them down. It's easier when you enjoy delicious (vitamin fortified) AYDS before meals. Shackelford's Personnel Rated High in Electrical Refrigeration Work

Force of Expert, Experienced Men Aid to Dealers

By PRESS HEDDLESTON

With a sales and service personnel classed among the very best of its kind in electrical refrigeration and equipment, insulation and kindred lines, the W. T. Shackelford Company is today equipped to render the finest possible service in its lines.

This concern is headed by W. T. Shackelford, who, himself, has had years of training and experience with high quality electrical and refrigeration equipment, and many thousands of users of these lines in Georgia can—and do—testify to his efficient and reliable service.

Recently the company has moved into its new home—a three-story building at 393 Peachtree street—and Mr. Shackelford has surrounded himself with a corps of efficient and trained salesmen and service men, thus making the service of his concern double appreciated and, in fact, doubly increasing the service he is giving.

Among the personnel of the company the owner and manager is proud to point to the experience and service of E. S. Caverly as a special assistant in the general conduct of the business. Mr. Caverly, as are all of the personnel, is a man of wide experience, whose advice can always be depended upon in all matters of commercial or home refrigeration. However, just at this time, the concern is turning most of its attention to commercial work.

Others in the concern who can be mentioned with pride by the owner for their ability in electrical refrigeration and its many ramifications, are Carl Johns, who was for many years with the General Electric Company, working in the refrigeration and equipment field.

Another valuable addition to the Shackelford house is Walter Burke, with a record of "know-how" in heating equipment.

Then there is Forrest Glasco, who rates along with the best in a knowledge of electrical refrigeration.

Along with all the expert advice and experience offered by a corps of efficient salesmen and expert knowledge concerning proper service, it should be stated that the Shackelford concern maintains a fine and up-to-the minute service shop, where valuable aid can always be offered.

Last, but by no means least, comes J. E. McClernon, who has been appointed manager of the insulation department of the Shackelford company. Mr. McClernon is also well known in the electrical industry, with a background of many years in management and sales. He has been engaged in the house insulation business for some time and is at the service of homeowners who contemplate insulating their homes.

W. T. Shackelford Company handles government-approved Reyn-O-Cel cotton insulation which is said to be the most efficient insulation on the market today. Reyn-O-Cel is flameproof, water-repellent, and insect-proof.

The company is now offering its Corosair oil fired heaters, which claims such outstanding features as heats, filters, purifies, cleanses, deodorizes, humidifies, revitalizes, circulates yielding compact, low-priced, unbelievable economy. The large size heater will operate full blast for one hour on one quart of kerosene, one pint for smaller size. A stove certificate is necessary to purchase one.

This heater is well sloganized, "A Mountain of Heat in a Capsule," with all sizes for home and office; also all manner of refrigeration equipment, such as frozen food cabinets, walk-in and reach-in coolers; a car load of icebox milk coolers; ventilating fans; a few ice cream machines.

Mr. Shackelford states that Mr. Caverly returned recently from a trip throughout the state acquainting dealers with the firm's post-war plans. A few outlets are still available and alert dealers will find it to their advantage to contact the W. T. Shackelford Company, 393 Peachtree street, VE 4718.

Clark's Transfer Service Can Meet All Movers' Needs

When—and if—you are planning to move your household goods for long-distance hauling in Georgia or local moving, it is a sure bet you are anxious to secure a concern that has the facility of trained experts in packing and moving—men who are careful with your furniture—and want to feel, too, that you are going to get this expert service at a fair, reasonable price.

Well, this is all introductory to telling you that you will find just what you desire by getting in touch with Clark's Transfer Service, 348 Capitol avenue, S. E. You can reach this well-known moving and state-wide hauling concern by calling JA. 3461 or WA. 0421 during the day, or JA. 5698-R at night.

This concern is owned and operated by J. T. Flannigan, who gives his personal attention in seeing that you get the best of careful service in all your moving transaction—a service most efficient and at reasonable cost.

The concern maintains a fleet of large and small vans, and is equipped to handle any size moving or storing job even up to the furnishings of a large hotel. Trucks are manned by courteous, efficient drivers and handlers and all furniture is padded as it is placed on the trucks.

Operating only throughout the state of Georgia on a certificate of public convenience and necessity, issued by the Public Service Commission, is your best guarantee that you are depending on a reliable moving concern to handle your household goods—and that is always a comfortable feeling to those who have to move. Cargo insurance is provided on every load from the time it leaves until reaching its destination.

In addition Clark's Transfer Service offers excellent storage facilities in the company's large warehouse at 489 Peachtree street. Occupying about 11,000 square feet, the building is equipped with a sprinkler system. The concern is also equipped to pack, crate, and ship china, pictures and other breakable objects.

Clark's Transfer Service is also meeting a distinct need in providing prompt, low-cost pickup and delivery service anywhere in the city.

Call this firm when you need its type of service. Free estimates are gladly furnished.

ARE YOU GOING TO MOVE?—You will be well pleased with the service of Clark's Transfer Service, 348 Capitol avenue, if you need local moving or statewide long-distance hauling. Above shows one of their fleet of large moving vans.

Dunn Opens Garage Rear Candler Hotel

E. E. Dunn, well-known Decatur resident, announces the opening of the Candler Hotel Garage, conveniently located at the rear of the Western Auto Supply Company, entrance off Church street, at the rear of the Candler hotel.

Mr. Dunn, a veteran of this World War II, was formerly engaged in the service station business, and is well acquainted with the needs of motorists.

The garage will feature complete automotive service, such as 24-hour storage, body and fender repair work, washing, greasing, simonizing, welding of all types, rebuilding wrecked autos, etc.

Mr. Dunn states that he has been fortunate in obtaining a staff of experienced mechanics who will render satisfactory service at very reasonable prices. All work is guaranteed. Open all night, the garage will offer a special service to persons in the vicinity of Decatur who may have their cars washed and simonized at night. Cars are called for and delivered.

Patrons of this large, modern, well-equipped shop are sure to be pleased with the service they render. Phone DE. 4451 or drive in. The convenient location just off the Decatur square, entrance off Church street, will enable downtown businessmen to leave their cars for needed work with very little inconvenience.

Retail Jewelers Find Their Needs At Elbee Company

Retail jewelers within a radius of several hundred miles of Atlanta are availing themselves of the opening of Atlanta's newest wholesale diamond and jewelry firm and are pleased because of this proximity to supply their needs, overcoming the distance of the eastern markets with its accompanying transit delays.

The Elbee Company, 208 Standard building, wholesale diamond and jewelry firm, reports a successful and ever-widening development of its business.

The Elbee Company was organized by L. B. Holzman, former prominent retail jeweler, and is the only wholesale organization in this section that specializes in unmounted diamonds and diamonds mounted, platinum, palladium and gold jewelry. It takes its name from the initials of the founder and president of the company.

Mr. Holzman states that jewelers from South Carolina to south Georgia are coming to the Elbee Company and that he has anticipated the very heavy demand for merchandise at this season of the year by the retail jewelers.

Nat L. Ullman is representative for this section and will be in the office to help any of the out-of-town jewelers who are in the city. Many of the jewelers send their customers to the Elbee offices, 208 Standard building, where they are waited on and their purchases billed to the jeweler who sent them. Several large diamond sales have been made for jewelers who are not able to supply their customers' needs from their own stock.

Have Your Rugs and Carpets Cleaned or Dyed by Experts

The reputation of the good work of the Atlanta Rug Cleaning-Dyeing Company has spread, not only over Atlanta and Georgia, but in several adjoining states this concern is rendering its well-established service in cleaning, dyeing and repairing rugs to many scores of housewives, hotels, clubs and other institutions.

From Florida and North Carolina, and other southern states, this rug cleaning and dyeing establishment is rendering highly satisfactory service from time to time on many orders for the type of work it is doing. Its owners and managers, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gano, are much pleased that it is able to offer its services, not only to thousands of households and institutions in and around Atlanta, but through their modern methods, their well-equipped plant, backed by many years of experience, they are able to meet the demands made from adjoining states. They solicit your rug-cleaning and dyeing, regardless of where you may live in the southeast.

This concern was established here about seven years ago at 1520 Spring street, N. W. It provides a completely reliable service that embosses every detail. The work is guaranteed and all rugs are fully insured against fire, theft, damage, or loss from the time they are picked up at your door until they are returned safely to your home.

When rugs are received by the company, they are carefully checked for needed repairs, including binding, refringing, re-napping, or reweaving of moth holes and cigarette burns. Customers are notified in advance if any of this work is required, and Chinese or Persian yarns are used to create a perfect match on Oriental.

If your rug or carpet is faded or spotted, or if you wish to change its color for matching purposes, the Atlanta Rug Cleaning-Dyeing Company will safely dye your rug. The concern has just purchased a new machine for cleaning tacked-down carpets without removing them from the floor, and when necessary can also dye tacked-down carpets on the floor. It is claimed to be the only firm in Atlanta specializing exclusively in cleaning, dyeing, and repairing rugs and carpets, and also the only company in the city using the steam cleaning method, which demotes and sterilizes rugs, restoring their original resiliency and luster. Domestic rugs are sized to give them extra strength and body.

When you have a rug cleaned, dyed or repaired by this company you have the satisfaction of knowing that the job will be done by experts who have made this their life's work. Mr. and Mrs. Gano have had approximately 15 years of experience and are regarded as specialists in the field. The Atlanta Rug Cleaning-Dyeing Company invites you to compare them about your rug problems. Call VE 4019 for complete information.

Dueling, Out With the Bustle, May Become Legal Again

By CECILE DAVIS.

Dueling, that old southern custom which went out of date with the bustle, may soon be no longer unconstitutional in Georgia.

As soon as a revision of the state's constitution is completed—and if it, with the clause lifting the ban on dueling, is approved—the young bloods who wish to satisfy their honor with swords, pistols or chocolate pies at 15 paces will find nothing in that document to stop them. The men who are writing Georgia's new constitution have eliminated entirely the ban on this age-old custom of settling arguments.

The last duel fought in the state of Georgia took place at Savannah in 1877, approximately 138 years after the first such contest. The principals, two young Savannah attorneys, their seconds and their docters met at the Brampton Plantation shortly before dusk on the appointed day.

DARKNESS INTERVENES

The duellists took their stand at 20 paces, fired, and missed. The seconds conferred, and it grew darker as minutes passed. Finally because one of the principals was too nearsighted to drive a bullet into his adversary, the contest was called off. The two men shook hands and remained friends the rest of their lives.

However, dueling was not always so bloodless. For instance, Jonathan Greenleaf, governor of Georgia and a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was killed in a duel with Gen. Lachlan McIntosh, grandson of John Mohr McIntosh, the Georgia pioneer. McIntosh, wounded in the contest, recovered, was tried and acquitted.

The last fatal duel, which, incidentally, gave impetus to the growing popular condemnation of the custom, was set in Savannah. According to the history books, Richardson Alden, a rice planter, challenged Ludlow Cohen, a fertilizer dealer, to a duel after an argument over a sailboat race in Savannah harbor, in which the two men had been competing. Cohen was a dead shot, but Cohen, experienced in the use of firearms, accepted his challenge.

COHEN KILLED

The duellists exchanged four harmless shots, but neither would agree to a settlement. The fifth bullet fired by Alden fatally wounded Cohen. Alden was tried and acquitted on his plea of self-defense, but popular sentiment condemned him.

As a result, a court of honor was set up, composed of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston and other prominent Georgians, to discourage duels and to settle challenges more diplomatically. Dueling continued spasmodically, but after 1870 it was painless, with the principals taking careful aim at the ground or above the heads of their opponents. After one harmless exchange of shots, they considered their honor satisfied, shook hands, and called it quits.

FORCED TO ALABAMA

Staging such a contest in Georgia had become too hectic by 1889, when the last would-be duellists, who had been forced to leave the state by the local sheriff, and ridiculed by the newspapers, Patrick Calhoun and J. R. Williamson were forced to take their quarrel across the Chattahoochee to Alabama.

Calhoun fired a single shot, but Williamson refused to fight. Neither hit his adversary, but Calhoun warned his adversary that he still had four bullets, and demanded that he apologize. Williamson refused, so there was nothing for the other principal to do but fire, and he did—into the air.

And so ended dueling in Georgia.

Although Georgia's new Constitution will not ban the custom, the state's constitution, which originated in the state of Georgia, is the only one in the country that does not ban dueling. The young man who fights it out with swords, pistols, or rifles nowadays usually finds himself charged with assault.

Foreign Goods Payment Unsound, Says Linder

Payment by foreign countries of debts to the United States in goods imported into this country, according to Tom Linder, Georgia agricultural commissioner told a reporter in Washington yesterday.

In the capital to attend a national cotton conference, Linder said that every item imported to our country costs our production, because we limit it to forestal surplus. Since our national income is seven times our farm income, it is seven times as easy to give away our goods than to sell them and accept imports in return," the Associated Press reported.

Freezer Plant Assured

MONROE, Ga., Dec. 3.—Monroe's freezer-locker plant becomes more of a reality as the required 60 per cent of the lockers have already been rented, making a total of 90 renters.
